America needs poor people?

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The national director of a welfare workers' association says the American economy depends on a certain number of people being poor and that is why welfare reform is not possible.

Edward T. Weaver, director of the American Public Welfare Association, said Friday that until the nation provides jobs for all its potential workers, there is no basis for complaints that the welfare recipient's along for the free ride.

"These people don't want to be unemployed. It's been demonstrated time and again that it's just not true that people on welfare are along for a free lunch," Weaver told the Western Regional Conference of the APWA.

$2 bill returns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury sources said Saturday they expect Secretary William Simon to resurrect the $2 bill — the unlabeled orphan of U.S. currency — in a bid to replace its bad luck image with bicentennial luster.

For years, Americans associate the $2 bill with rascally gamblers. A Treasury official said, "We would like the bill to be seen in a more patriotic light."

The Treasury sources said Simon would announce the revival of the bill Monday. It was driven out of circulation in 1964 by unpopularity, largely due to the superstition that it had bad luck and its association with gambling.

A printing and engraving expert said the first new $2 bill — perhaps graced by Thomas Jefferson on one side and the Declaration of Independence on the other — probably will not appear until around July 4 next year.

Eddie married again

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Eddie Fisher, former husband of actresses Elizabeth Taylor, Debbie Reynolds, and Connie Stevens, was married Oct. 29 to Terry Richard, 21, a former beauty queen in Baja California, Mexico, his agent said Saturday.

The agent said the couple met a year ago at a Bel Air party. They are scheduled to leave Nov. 11 for Australia where Fisher will be on tour.

It was the first marriage for Miss Richard, the fourth for Fisher, 47. Miss Richard was Miss Louisiana in the 1973 Miss World contest.

Running for life

NEW YORK (UPI) Financially hard-pressed New York City officials said Saturday they had turned down a secret $2.8 billion loan offer from an Arab country but not because they ever had the money.

The loan offer was disclosed Saturday in Jack Anderson's syndicated column. He said the offer was frayed by his staff from the Persian Gulf.

The initial offer was made to Mayor Abraham Beame about two months ago and withdrawn Oct. 29 after the city failed to meet with negotiators for the lender, Anderson said.

George Meister, a private attorney, approached the mayor with the city's saving offer about two months ago, Anderson said. "The $2.8 billion could have been made available through London's Burlington Bank. Our sources asked us not to identify the Arab nation which offered to loan New York city."

They speculated that the phaser, who must answer to a large Jewish population, considered it impossible politically for him to accept Arab petrodollars.

A City Hall spokesman denied that was the mayor's motive in ignoring the offer.

"There are three problems with that story, all of which we told Jack Anderson's people," the spokesman said. "But they chose not to include that in their story."

In the first place, he said, there was a stipulation that the loan be guaranteed by New York banks.

"If we could get debt guarantees from New York banks, we wouldn't have to go for a loan to get credit," the spokesman said.

He said the loan also carried an 8.8 per cent compounded interest rate, with interest and the principle of the loan due in 20 years. "That would cost the city $14 billion," he said. "In our view this had not been a realistic offer."

"And thirdly, the nature of the loan would have posed constitutional questions concerning debt limits set by the state. In other words, he said, the amount of money offered would have exceeded legal limit the city is allowed to borrow."

Food fund pledged

ROME (UPI) Representatives of 62 nations agreed Saturday on the form of a draft charter setting up a $1.25 billion fund to fight famine by helping hungry nations feed themselves.

If it is approved by the U.N. General Assembly, the International Fund for Agricultural Development could go into operation next year, U.N. officials said. It is considered the key weapon in the world battle against hunger.

During the six-day meeting at the headquarters of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, the developed nations and members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries confirmed they would meet the initial funding target, FAO said.

Britain pledged nearly $2 million, Norway some $12.3 million and the Netherlands about $40 million toward the target of $1.25 billion originally proposed by the OPEC bloc.

The United States reaffirmed its intention of seeking congressional approval for a $200 million contribution if other countries provide the rest of the funding.

The nine-nation European Common Market also is considering contributing while other potential donors including oil-rich Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Iran, Libya and Venezuela said they would announce their contributions at a formal pledging meeting expected to be held in Rome early next year.

In a letter sent to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, the delegations recommended:

"The fund be established as a specialized agency within the U.N. system with autonomy for policy formulation and operations. It would be the first international aid body controlled by developing nations."

Terrorists escape the SWAT squad

LOS ANGELES (UPI) Three members of what authorities called a terrorist group, suspected of shooting four persons, two fatally, in an execution-style slaying, escaped a tight network of police Saturday at the end of a nine-hour standoff at a south Los Angeles apartment building.

About 85 police officers, including members of a special weapons and tactics team, evacuated a one-block area as a safety precaution.

Authorities called it the biggest police operation since the 1971 earthquake.

Authorities brought in special equipment and had a bomb truck and several fire companies standing by. Six police divisions were placed on tactical alert.

When the suspects failed to give themselves up following appeals from authorities on a bullhorn, officers of a Special Weapons and Tactics Team (SWAT) went through the 12-unit building and kicked in the doors of the apartments.

"There were no suspects inside and authorities said they do not know how the suspect escaped or whether they were in the building."

"This is one of those situations where you have to use extreme care," police spokesman Dan Cook said.

"We would rather be safe than sorry. Three persons were still at large."

Authorities originally said the shootings were believed to be narcotics-related.

Price raised

Rapidly rising production, newsprint and delivery costs make it necessary to increase Times-News subscription prices.

Beginning Nov. 1, subscriptions will be $4 a month.

Paperboys and girls will receive 20 per cent of the increase and rural route drivers will receive 30 per cent.

Another 24 per cent of the increase will go to state sales tax not previously required by the state.

Lincoln, Bancroft, Youtz and Smith

There are six able persons seeking election to only four seats on the Twin Falls City Council.

While the choice among those running is difficult, it still must be made. Here is the Times-News pick.

Incumbent councilman Stephen Lincoln Lincoln, a dentist, has served competently and forcefully for four years on the council. He has been willing to speak and vote his mind during that term.

His voting record has a generally conservative cast, although the range of his interests and his questioning approach make him difficult to label. He can't be taken for granted on any issue, a trait sorely needed in city government.

Stephen Bancroft, Bancroft has served a one-year partial term on the council. He is an accountant of a generally conservative bent but with an open mind on issues.

His financial experience is an area where Bancroft can contribute much. His emphasis on efficiency and controlling costs of existing city programs is well placed.

His short term on the council has left him with an incomplete knowledge of city activities (for example, his claim that the city doesn't extend sewer lines beyond its limits — see candidate questionnaire on p. 7 of today's paper). Still, Bancroft is a seasoned, able person with much to contribute to the city.

Margaret Youtz, Mrs. Youtz grew up in Twin Falls and recently returned here with her family. While she was gone she earned an advanced degree in business administration and valuable financial experience. Her financial background, along with her campaign emphasis on efficient city budgeting and operations should combine well for the city's benefit.

Moreover, Mrs. Youtz is a digger, someone who is unlikely to be satisfied with superficial assurances that everything is being well managed all the time. If there are places where the city is slacking off, she probably will find them.

Leon Smith Jr. Smith is a Twin Falls attorney with good experience in local government, both as a city councilman and as county prosecuting attorney. Smith is another candidate of conservative bent and an open mind on issues.

Smith is probably not most valuable as a digger or as an initiator of action, but as a person able to work with and through others to bring an idea to fruition. His experience also gives him an edge.

There are two other candidates seeking office, Gordon Cox and Chris Talkington, both of whom could render the city valuable service. Cox has been active in the city for many years. Talkington, although a relative newcomer, gained some valuable insight into the city's problems while news director of KMVT-TV for a short while.

But when all factors are considered, our choice remains Lincoln, Bancroft, Youtz and Smith.

Shadows of trouble ahead for US in Mideast

WASHINGTON — President Sadat of Egypt made a good personal impression in Washington, but some things were said during his visit that foreshadow great trouble ahead in Washington's relations with both Egypt and Israel.

For example, in a meeting with editors at Blair House, Sadat emphasized that he had come here, not primarily to get military arms, but to move toward a general peace agreement in the Middle East, and he insisted that the United States held "99 per cent of the cards" in any such "final" settlement between Israel and the Arab states.

When he was pressed for the meaning of this, it turned out that he meant Washington alone had the power to compel Israel to withdraw to the borders it held before the 1967 war, arrange for Israeli-Syrian negotiations on the future of the Golan Heights, and resolve the problem of the Palestinians in direct talks with Arafat and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

And how was this to be done? He implied that it could be done only if the United States began withholding economic and military aid from Israel. The "continuation" of the struggle should be "altered," and turned over to "all people who believe in God."

When you ask top officials here what is meant by "the continuation of the United States not to tolerate separation or stalemate" in this kind of situation, they reply that the United States is not likely to give up more than $2 billion a year to Israel "to perpetuate a stalemate." In other words, the pressure will be on Israel, not necessarily to meet all of Sadat's terms, but to make more concessions for a general settlement.

President Ford did not reply to this directly, at least not in public, but he stressed calmly about maintaining peace and insisted that he was relying on Washington rather than New York for help. He hasn't suggested any timetable for a final peace, but it was clear that peace "has depended on less and less for Israel and more for Egypt." There was no agreement in Washington, but both Egypt and Israel seem to be making unfulfilled promises to each other.

The Ford administration and the Congress will do their best to maintain a general atmosphere of calm.

The Ford administration and the Congress will do their best to maintain a general atmosphere of calm.

It is hard to understand what this means since Syria is not interested in talking to Israel about the Golan Heights. Israel refuses to negotiate with Arafat and the Palestine Liberation Organization and Israel rejects the demands of the Palestinian people.

When you ask top officials here what is meant by "the continuation of the United States not to tolerate separation or stalemate" in this kind of situation, they reply that the United States is not likely to give up more than $2 billion a year to Israel "to perpetuate a stalemate." In other words, the pressure will be on Israel, not necessarily to meet all of Sadat's terms, but to make more concessions for a general settlement.

The Ford administration wants to keep its nose relating to Egypt and Israel — and continue negotiations with Israel — for more concessions. But it is not likely to force a showdown with Israel in an election year, so it will probably support a large $2 billion installment on military aid to Israel.

and request substantial economic aid for Egypt. Whether the Congress will go along with this when it is engaged in a critical debate about bailing New York out of bankruptcy is another matter, and Mayor Beame of New York didn't help either the city or Israel by refusing to receive Sadat in New York.

Feelings are rising on the Hill against these ineffectual contacts that are immobilized but not resolved by buying off the combatants out of a depleted U.S. Treasury. They are rising too, at the argument that the answers to the nation's and the world's problems are higher and higher military budgets at home and more military and economic abroad.

Thus, while Sadat was pleasant to everybody and everybody liked Abe Beame, he was courteous to him, nothing happened here to change the fundamental differences and dangers in the Middle East. The sole real change is that the cost of maintaining a shaky compromise has gone up, probably about $3 billion.

San Diegoans say 'Enough'

By NEA/London Economist News Service

SAN DIEGO — (GENS) — San Diego is a particularly nice place to live. It has just north of the Mexican border in California, it has beautiful scenery and plenty of room — 30 square miles of it, more than ten times New York City.

In a "quality of life" contest financed by the Environmental Protection Agency, it came tenth, just after San Francisco. San Diegans want to keep it as it is and so on September 21, they re-elected their mayor, Peter Wilson, who has made the city known for the strict controls it has placed on its growth. Already, with a population of around 1.5 million, it is the third largest city in California.

What has frightened San Diego is the prospect of hideous urban sprawl and the risk of losing its identity if unrestricted building gave the people moving down into southern California a place to settle. Taxes would go up if more municipal services had to be provided, and the new settlers might well be too poor to pay their share.

So Diegans were grateful when Wilson got the city council to put farce restrictions on new development. Building could take place only in designated areas and, if municipal services were lacking, the builders had to pay the bill for them, even for new schools.

Predictably, the number of new houses plummeted from 14,000 in 1971 to under 10,000 in 1972. This time round Wilson's opponent supported by the builders and the building trade unions, argued that the policy was strangling the city economically. It was all in vain.

'Most influential' list has variety of uses

Well, L. James made the list. Of course, I have always been on lists of one kind or another anyway, but this time it was a surprise to find that the Times-News now numbers L. James among the 80 "most influential" citizens.

Nearly a week has gone by, so what has been the result of this vast amount of influence that I have? I ventured forth to exercise this newly recognized membership in the leadership elite. The first contact was the next morning while having coffee with some of the current at the Rogerson Restaurant.

I nonchalantly attempted to steer the conversation around to the most important news event of the year by asking them what was new in the Times-News lately.

John Angermeier replied, "Did you see the ad from the Bank & Trust? I always read all the bank ads and I feel that ours is far superior to any other bank's." "Nothing else, John?" "No, I read nothing but bank ads."

Ben Mottner's reply was "Say, that was quite a writeup they gave the University of Idaho, Las Vegas game, wasn't it? That's all I ever read — the sport page. The third guy doesn't even take the paper and never reads it. Claims the price is 'too high.' His name has been mentioned from future mention in this paper."

My ego is now thoroughly bruised. Nobody has asked me to do much as attempt to fix a parking ticket. And believe me, I am truly an authority on parking tickets in Twin Falls.

All right, if you won't listen to me then the mountain goes to Mohammed. I must attempt to peddle my newly recognized skill. Offers to use my influence for various people's causes were quickly rebutted with such comments as, "L. James, if you don't mind, we would rather do it ourselves." Or possibly, "Look, Jim, I know you mean well but it's face it, your endorsement of this project will be the kiss of death." The most cutting of all was when the effort to exercise leadership and influence was met with the curt question, "Who the hell are you?"

After a sudden, a horrible thought has occurred. The Times-News may have inadvertently destroyed the careers of these people as an influential factor in our community. Influence thrives on pedestal-influentiality. Exposure in the light of day is fatally destructive to those of us who would like to feel that we are influential. Our Machiavellian tactics and underground plan techniques in accomplishing whatever goal demands that our work be done in the shadows.

Now it becomes clear what they have in common. It's the prime Pigeon List for Twin Falls County.

Having made this discovery, may I suggest that everybody go back to last Tuesday's issue of the Times-News, pull out of the garbage can and cut that list out?

You have been freed from the taint of the most impudent of philistine wagons waiting serenely in the inevitable plumbing for every advertising program, ticket purchasing gimmick and con game that has ever been conceived. There they are. Twin Falls' finest being served to you on a paper platter.

BY GOLLY, THERE'S A LOT OF PRESSURE ON ME!!

Grain purchases explained, Soviet school style from the United States is because of detente. Our leader Comrade Brezhnev is bringing peace to the world by accepting capitalist surplus food which we don't need. Detente in English means "to buy grain."

Comrade Teacher, why does the United States have a surplus of wheat and grain and corn?

But they're probably up to it.

Let us go to a Soviet school and listen in on a class.

All right, Comrade Children, today we shall talk about food. Who is greatest agricultural country in the world?

Class in unison, "Soviet Union, Comrade Teacher."

That's good. Now we will discuss Sputnik, "Comrade Teacher."

"What is it, Comrade Ivan?"

"Why, it Soviet Union's greatest agricultural country in the world, we buy wheat and corn from the United States."

"I'm glad you asked that question, you little bourgeois," interrevolutionary Maids. The reason we are buying wheat and corn and grain commission to tell them how much wheat and grain they can grow in Soviet Union. Well, the farmers know much wheat they should plant. The farmers don't grow it beyond more than what the state planning commission tells them. Now sit down and shut up, Ivan."

"But, Comrade Teacher, is state planning commission telling Soviet farmers how much wheat they can grow?"

"Yes, it is, Comrade Teacher. We are going to do it."

"But, Comrade Teacher, we are going to do it."

"Yes, it is, Comrade Teacher. We are going to do it."

"But, Comrade Teacher, we are going to do it."

"Yes, it is, Comrade Teacher. We are going to do it."

Harris: populist president?

By Congressional Quarterly

"The basic issue in 1976 is privilege... whether the government will begin to look after the interests of the average family, or whether it will continue to protect the interests of the super-rich and the giant corporations," — Fred Harris.

Fred Harris is not the nation's first populist, but the former senator from Oklahoma (D-1962-70) aims to be its first populist president.

Other incarnations of the wealth-and-power redistribution movement have founders despite the leadership of such inspirational candidates as William Jennings Bryan and Robert LaFollette. Yet Harris, at 44, is convinced that this time the people are ready for the populist gospel.

For more than a year, he and his wife, LaDonna, have been patiently cultivating small groups of supporters through their low-budget "people's campaign." The style and substance of the campaign are intertwined in this standard message from Harris: "If you're going to be a citizen president, you ought to be a citizen candidate. That means living the way other people live, and traveling without any staff, or very little of it, to get between you and the people."

That approach reached its apex last summer. For the entire month of August, the Harris and a skeleton staff traversed the country in a camper bearing the label, "On the Road to the White House." Kicked off by an amateurish attended rally in Washington's Lafayette Park at the door of the White House, the humble caravan lugged 6 suitcases and 35 excursionists across 18 states. It paid for itself by passing the plane rental expense, under $9,000. The staple of the trip was the small towns and small groups of citizens invariably skipped over by the moneyed and jet-set candidates.

Harris' theory is that the crucial element in this campaign, far more than money or even media attention, is cells of committed supporters.

Wherever the campaign takes populists, however, Harris, his curvy, hard-hitting redhair pounds home the same theme. The core of his populist appeal is the attack on aggregated, unaccounted wealth and power in a society that applies to be democratic. He upholds the individual rich; but his real goal is aimed at the affluent oligarchs, with their intrinsic perverse economic advantages over the "little man." His stance on virtually every specific issue flows from that prime position.

Harris is hardly reticent-to-spill out the specious implications of his attack-on-aggregated economic power. Among other things, it means:

Tax reform — "getting the rich off welfare," as Harris calls it. This includes the elimination of such provisions as the accelerated depreciation of business capital investments and special treatment of capital gains, passage of a more steeply graduated income tax and enactment of a higher minimum income tax to thwart those rich who pay little or no taxes under existing law.

A Jeffersonian antitrust policy, coupling tough enforcement to break up monopolies and oligopolies. Harris calls them "shared monopolies" with legislation to aid small businesses.

Guaranteed public employment, where private work is unavailable. For those who cannot work a negative income tax would provide income maintenance.

Placement of the federal reserve system under public control, through effective congressional oversight.

Regulatory reform, including abolition of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board, aimed at eliminating government sanctioned inflation inducing monopolies.

Elimination of complex subsidies to agribusinesses, corporations, joint an explicit policy of support for the existence of the small farmer.

Harris' positions on complex economic issues merely deft categorization. Some, such as taxpayer-supported public service employment and regulatory reforms, have been endorsed by some conservatives. Yet the majority of the planks in Harris' economic platform are in traditional terms liberal or even radical.

His record on race relations appears unequivocal. His wife, LaDonna Crawford Harris, is a Comanche Indian. Harris has established the Oklahoma Human Rights Commission. His work on the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders in 1967 was firm in its focus on white racism as the root cause of black urban riots. His Senate record on civil rights was one of solid support for minorities. As Democratic national chairman from January 1969 to March 1970, he led the way in opening up the party to women and racial minorities.

He is not the favorite of the Democratic Party's left wing. On the one side, he is too radical in his proposals; for others, he is too simplistic in prescribing remedies for exasperatingly complex problems. Only if Harris adds to his share of the fractured left wing by attracting support from the right can Harris emerge from the pack and capture the momentum needed to win the party nomination. Likewise, only by attracting those voters can Harris quell the fears of Democrats who fear another rejection of the party by its traditional labor supporters.

In keeping with his record on civil rights for minorities, Harris has favored school racial integration while in the Senate, he introduced legislation aimed at facilitating it.

The major votes on the busing issue have occurred since his tenure in the Senate, but he has declared that where neighborhood control of schools amounts to racial discrimination, the right to equality before the law must take that of most of the other presidential candidates.

Likewise, Harris does not have the veneer of an eastern education. All his formal schooling was in his home state. He graduated from the University of Oklahoma at the head of his law class and established his own firm. In 1956 he was elected a state senator at age 26, the youngest in Oklahoma history.

Harris' ambition became equally apparent in 1962. He made a premature bid for the governorship and lost fitfully. Undaunted, he began in 1963 to prepare for a shot at the U.S. Senate. He was elected to a two-year term in 1964 and was re-elected to a full term in 1966.

Harris' critics observe that his ambition has at precedence over local control. Harris' major focus, however, is on working to end white prejudice, rather than simply reducing the impact of discrimination.

On women's rights, Harris has been a constant supporter of the adoption of the Equal Rights Amendment, which he cosponsored in the Senate. He favors the appointment of women to cabinet posts and to the Supreme Court. In both government and private employment, he supports affirmative action policies.

He also endorses the Supreme Court decision on abortion, viewing that as a question of the privacy of the individual woman. Privacy issues

200 mile fishing limit stirs Washington debate

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Ocean fishermen from Maine to Florida and from Louisiana to Alaska are on their way to convincing Congress to expand the U.S. fishing limit to 200 miles.

The House passed by a 24 margin a bill that would extend the existing 12-mile limit next July 1, and the Senate is expected to pass a similar measure. But the legislation faces the possibility of a veto by President Ford.

The bill is being pressed by members of Congress from coastal states, who point to a dramatic increase in fishing by foreign vessels of U.S. coasts at the expense of American fishermen. If it is passed, domestic and foreign fishing vessels would be subject to federal restrictions up to 200 miles from U.S. shores.

Opponents counter that the bill would do more harm than good to U.S. fishermen and U.S. relations abroad and that a better course is to wait for an international ocean treaty to emerge from the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference.

Should the United States increase its fishing zone to 200 miles?

Pro: Economic Necessity

Rep. David F. Emery, R-Maine, told House members that the waters off the coast of his state have been "invaded by an armada of foreign vessels" in recent years. "We can't wait any longer" to protect the U.S. fishing industry by restricting foreign fishing, he warned. The National Marine Fisheries Service reports that U.S. fishermen took 92.9 percent of the total catch off the Atlantic coast in 1969, but only 59 percent in 1974.

The increase in technologically sophisticated and efficient foreign fishing vessels, from such countries as the Soviet Union, Japan and Poland, has resulted in serious threats to at least 10 important fish species, said the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

The resources of the sea are renewable, if carefully managed and conserved. It continued, but unchecked fishing will lead to their depletion.

Supporters of the bill acknowledge that an international treaty dealing with all sea issues would be desirable, but they say that the situation is too serious to wait for that. The United Nations Law of the Sea Conference first met in 1958 and still has not come up with a treaty. The conference is scheduled to meet again in early 1976, but there is no guarantee it will agree on an accord. The House committee concluded that the issue of the health of the U.S. fishing industry and the conservation of fish stocks would be "moot" unless immediate relief is provided.

Community block to a restaurant table every noon? Good deductive reasoning suggests hunger might have something to do with it. But it's more than a growing stomach which motivates the mad dash to the dining booth.

Circulating amid the downtown lunch crowd is a grand social event. The scene is a sort of rousing Klavins Club.

Choosing the "correct" luncheon partner, debating the merits of the Tompynknocker, special versus the Specks lunch plate is a highspot in sometimes dreary working days.

Even as their booths fill, Twin Falls restaurant operators are scratching their heads like worried housewives because of escalating food costs. Fish fillets for example, are up 200% compared to 1973, burger buns are up 100%, for the same and onions have become so expensive most regular cheeseburgers don't include a slice of lettuce.

The high price of enjoying a social lunch on the town hasn't gone unnoticed. But day after day the lure of an exciting lunch vetoes any notion that a peanut butter and jelly at home would fill the same cavity.

Rather than give up the downtown lunch money Twin Falls luncheon regulars have embraced the daily specials or the hamburger.

The Depo Grill, Norm's, Rosgeron and Specks sell more hamburgers and special plates today than at any time in the last five years. At the same time sandwich and other expensive cuts of meat have gone the way of the five cent cup of coffee.

Enterprising businessmen apparently have great confidence in the future of the Twin Falls lunch. Last year alone 17 new eating establishments opened up ground town. All but a couple are still operating, even as the old standbys downtown still pack 'em in.

It just goes to show most of Twin Falls is out to lunch—albeit one hour a day.

CHRIS PECK
But what once were vies now are habits and now the restaurant business has ballooned into a $10 billion goldmine. By 1980 the National Restaurant Association estimates the entire American population will eat half their daily meals at a local cafe.

Anybody who has tried to get a seat at the Depo Grill, Specks or Rosgeron, likely knows that Twin Falls is right in there with the hungriest of them when it's time to grill.

At the stroke of noon, an outsider might think King Kong was swinging on the Perrine Bridge jutting from the common downtown business secretary workers, just about everybody with a stomach and two legs makes the dash to the lunch counter.

Why does the bulk of the Twin Falls business lures him away from the state idealism of the New Populism and back to the old expediency. In his early years in the U.S. Senate he mixed well with the entrepreneur party leadership, as proved by his co-chairing of the 1964 Humphrey presidential campaign and then by his leadership of the party itself.

Yet by 1971, Harris had emerged as an independent voice. He had broken with the Johnson administration on the war in Vietnam. He had been vocal on urban affairs and race relations despite the cost to his Oklahoma popularity; and his voting record had become more liberal.

Such behavior would have earned him trouble in Oklahoma where he would have had stiff opposition if he had decided to run again for the Senate in 1972. He, ran instead for the presidency and began in that campaign to give full voice to the positions he advocates currently.

While Harris spends the bulk of his campaign time spreading the populist economic message, he is also vocal on a panoply of other issues. Often he sees these as being inextricably related to the basic demand for a fairer distribution of wealth and access to power.

The keys to Harris' approach to crafting a foreign policy are these:

Let the people know what is being done, stop conducting foreign affairs for the benefit of the big, multinational corporations, and place international behavior on a more moral footing.

"Some people swear against an isolationist foreign policy," he said. "What we've had is an isolationist foreign policy—it has isolated us from peoples and governments all over the world. What we need is a foreign policy that aims at vision of the world we would like to see."

There was a time at the end of World War II when nations everywhere wanted to pattern themselves after us. That can happen again.

Such an open, moral foreign policy would involve many specifics: Terminate U.S. support of such regimes as that of Brazil—or the now-defunct junta in Greece, and such covert operations as the opposition to the Allende regime in Chile and cut the defense budget substantially. Harris has even called for outright abolition of the expose-ridden Central Intelligence Agency.

In keeping with his record on civil rights for minorities, Harris has favored school racial integration while in the Senate, he introduced legislation aimed at facilitating it.

The major votes on the busing issue have occurred since his tenure in the Senate, but he has declared that where neighborhood control of schools amounts to racial discrimination, the right to equality before the law must take are of particular concern to Harris. He opposes governmental assertions of the right to wiretap and to conduct electronic surveillance on citizens and he views the criminalization of marijuana and of sexual activities among consenting adults as additional examples of unacceptable governmental intrusion into private lives.

The populist themes are easily adapted to the wants of both the young and the old. The society. For the old, Harris advocates greater control over their own lives through increased Social Security benefits that are indexed to inflation; more reliance on direct income support that allows the old to choose the services they prefer, and an end to compulsory retirement.

For the young, he supports greater control over the educational institutions in which they spend their formative years.

Harris' opposition to the oil companies is understandable from his positions on energy and the environment. He would begin by restructuring the oil industry through the antitrust laws. He would curb consumption of fuel by forcing the automobile companies to build more gas-efficient cars, by abolishing discounts for big-volume users of electricity and possibly by a fuel allocation program.

He would then promote the development of alternative energy sources by intensive funding of research into geothermal, solar and other sources. He emphatically would not support the continued development of nuclear power, however, favoring instead a moratorium on nuclear plants.

Harris demonstrated an interest in conservation while in the Senate by sponsoring one of the bills advocating ocean mammal protection. As passed, the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 (PL 92-522) set a permanent moratorium on most killing of ocean mammals and on the importation of their products.

Familiar with the problems of cities through his work on the National Urban Coalition's Commission on the Cities in the '70s, Harris strongly criticizes the federal failure to hold out New York City from its fiscal distress. He advocates both emergency financial assistance for hardship cities and long-term aid through assumption of health and welfare burdens and through greater control of interest rates that increase the cities' debt maintenance problems.

As for health care, Harris' populist answer is a universal, federally funded system. The costs of the system should be reduced through greater emphasis on group medical practice and the use of paraprofessionals. More reliance on preventive care and improvement in the national record on infant mortality and the doctor-patient ratio are also urged by Harris.

Prayer for today

We all have birthdays. God, birthdays mark a milestone in our lives. We've been trusted with another year of life.

During the year we've had many occasions when we have had to decide whether we'd be weak or strong. We hate to admit that we ever decide to be weak, but we do.

We could be strong with your help.

We look back with both pleasure and regret. But help us not to look back too much. Instead, help us to look forward and be sure the year ahead is used more wisely. — Ute Martin, Buhl.

Bob Dylan: New tour called 'unusual'

N.Y. Times Service
PLYMOUTH, Mass. -- Bob Dylan has always had a sense of occasion, and so it seemed only appropriate for him to begin his latest, most unusual tour here in "America's home town" as Plymouth likes to call itself.

For its conception this is surely the most American and most democratic of all of Dylan's performing ventures. And on the basis of Thursday night's nearly 3-hour opening performance, it may turn out to be his most loving as well.

Pop music super stars have drifted away from direct contact with their fans in recent years. Concerts, including tour concerts, with Dylan and The Band in early 1971, take place in indoor basketball arenas or even more gigantic stadiums.

As one person from Plymouth who saw the show Thursday night put it, "Seeing Bob Dylan from the back of Madison Square Garden is like watching a flea circus."

The new tour is designed to make "at least symbolic correction of all that it reminds symbolic because to play in enough small halls to as many people as Dylan played for in 1971 would take years. But for those lucky enough to get in to these concerts, the corrective is a very real one."

This tour arose from Dylan's busy informal activity on the New York club circuit over the last few months. "A few years ago he moved out of his Greenwich Village apartment and disappeared in the direction of Madison and domestic contentment." The passion and fire of his youth looked spent at last. Dylan's initial impetus had been muted after his near fatal motorcycle accident in 1966. But the move west had seemed to put the seal on his significance as a contemporary artist. But with the Band tour Dylan "confounded the doubters by beginning a new and further period of performances and song writing. The latest, studio album, and the New York club taping not only indicated a fresh burst of energy from him but worked very directly to enliven the whole folk-rock club scene here."

The tour that opened Thursday night represents the loss of institutionalization of both that club spirit and the desire to play directly to the fans free from the hoopla of big-city, music-industry mechanics. Although plans were completed several weeks ago, the tour organizers guarded the secret as well as they could -- this is the real "magical mystery tour," as one of the performers noted last night.

Dylan appeared nearly an hour into the proceedings, wandering on unannounced. He offered five songs before the intermission, beginning with "When I Paint My Masterpiece" and ending with two numbers from his forthcoming album, "Durancho" and "Isis." In all, Dylan sang 16 songs in superbly effective style, as forceful as the last tour but with a newfound mellowness, too. There were six new ones and several others from the past five years.

Estrogen linked to some cancer

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK -- The incidence of cancer of the uterus increased 13 percent from 1961 to 1971 in the San Francisco Bay area, according to statistics gathered by the California Tumor Registry.

The director of the registry, Dr. Donald Austin, who said that similar increases in the disease have been noted elsewhere, related the change to the increasing use of estrogens to treat the symptoms of menopause.

Other experts in the field said that while post-menopausal "estrogens" were undoubtedly an important factor in the rise in uterine cancer, other contributing factors probably include an increase in detection of the disease and dietary changes, especially the use of estrogen to treat the symptoms of menopause.

Other experts in the field said that while post-menopausal "estrogens" were undoubtedly an important factor in the rise in uterine cancer, other contributing factors probably include an increase in detection of the disease and dietary changes, especially a trend toward more animal fats in the diet.

Austin reported that in the California registry, the rate of endometrial cancer, which involves the body of the uterus, not the cervix, had increased from 27.2 cases per 100,000 population in 1960 to 41.4 cases per 100,000 in 1971. He said that the Connecticut Tumor Registry has reported a similar increase during the same period.

Austin said that the increase was most notable among affluent white women over the age of 50, the woman who would be most likely to take estrogen in order to relieve the symptoms and after effects of menopause.

At menopause the ovaries -- the body's main source of estrogens -- shut down but hormone production sometimes continues and after effects can reverse many of those effects and may also ward off some effects of aging, including degeneration of the bones.

Federal officials report that the estrogen market increased from $17 million in 1962 to $60 million in 1973 amidst continuing controversy among doctors as to the usefulness and safety of the hormone for postmenopausal therapy.

A large study among women participating in the Kaiser Permanente health plan found a "modest" increase in the incidence of uterine cancer among women who took post-menopausal estrogens.

More men get 'permanents'

Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO -- Traditionally, in times of tight money, it was Daddy who was last to get new clothes. Now he may be getting them.

The "perm" is catching on with the men -- and just models, show business personalities and baseball players, either.

Blue-collar workers are getting them. White-collar workers are getting them. And so are men with collars, and some who wear theirs backwards.

Their numbers, while not exactly mushrooming, are increasing to such an extent that numerous top Chicago and New York beauty salons (which used to be strictly women's territory) are staying open at night once or twice a week to style, curl and/or color the locks of men who can't or don't have enough nerve to visit them in daylight.

At the same time, others are getting "permmed" in men's salons.

Color and streaking can run from $15 to $100 depending upon how much and whether it's a first job or a touch-up.

A few of the prestigious Chicago salons where you're likely to see men getting "permmed" or "colored" in chairs formerly occupied solely by women include those at Bonwit Teller and J. Magnin, Marc Benaim, Paul Glick, Jean Pierre and Charles Hergen.

In either camp, they're also getting "color," which can mean anything from out-and-out dyed to "sun-painted" facials, pedicures and mani-pedis.

Prices vary not only from salon to salon, but from job-to-job. Salons I checked explained that they charge according to what has to be done, not according to the sex of the customer.

If a man can get his hair styled and curled for less than $40, he has found himself a bargain. The average is about $50.

Jerry Micaniski, 31, male hairdresser now account for about 15 per cent of his total business at his North Shore salon in Glencoe, and many of them are "professional" men who frequent his shop on Thursday evenings.

At Colins of London, primarily a men's salon in Chicago, owner Colin said middle-aged wives actually are marching their middle-aged husbands into get permanent and staying there with them to be sure they get it.

In New York, a spokesman for Kenneth said the famous women's beauty establishment is now observing men's night on Wednesdays -- and that there's a whole market out there that hasn't been tapped.

The spokesman said the men are coming in for the same services women have been getting.

Twin Falls City candidates give views on issues

Biography

Give name, age, length of Twin Falls city residency, occupation, education, relevant experience of skills.

Leon E. Smith, Jr.

Leon Smith, 38, a seven year resident of Twin Falls. He practices law with the firm of Smith and Beeks. Smith has a B.S. in architectural engineering and has his doctorate in law. Four years experience as an elected official in Twin Falls city and county, and two as prosecuting attorney in Twin Falls county and two on the City Council.

The biggest City problem will probably be in the area of finance and priority of programs. Without an increase in our mill levy, we cannot continue the programs presently being conducted by the City. The City must continue an economic operation with basic services and protection. This may mean a cut-back in some not essential programs. In short, the biggest problem is sensible decision making about priorities.

Police protection should be updated and better facilities provided for improvement in our City. Law Enforcement, Street improvement, maintenance and traffic control devices are items that should always be upgraded and improved even if it costs more money.

No — The City should not continue financial support for the City-County Planning Program.

Better planning and good controls over un-restricted areas of impact around the City of Twin Falls.

As long as the City Sewer systems are adequate to accommodate out-of-city connections, the city does not lose money by making the connections and the city thereby is able to annex the subdivision and force compliance with the City codes by the hook-up of the sewer line, this practice should be continued.

I hope the Downtown Mall will eventually be extended, but I do not favor the City of Twin Falls bearing the cost of this program.

I have never been a fan of parking meters and the only reason I have given, tacit support to parking meters in the past is that we have obligated ourselves to do so by contract in order to make improvements that were accomplished several years ago.

I personally like Twin Falls the way it is now, but I would not like to see any measures taken to restrict or prohibit future growth. Citizens are subject to too many governmental controls now.

I think it is imperative that the State Department of Transportation fulfill their commitment to widen Addison Avenue as they have promised to do. North Five Points should be reconstructed, thereby helping alleviate the congestion generated by this street and intersection—Blue Lakes North is also a State Highway problem. The City has repeatedly encouraged them to widen Blue Lakes North and to provide turn-outs lanes on both sides of the street.

I definitely do not support Twin Falls City or County joining the Regional Airport Authority, unless and until that authority accepts Joslin Field as the Regional Airport and develops it accordingly.

Yes, if the feasibility study would project a lower cost to the citizens of Twin Falls, than they are now supporting at the present regional "airport" at Joslin Field; Only if the airport authority would agree to support Joslin Field for general aviation, all of this not costing the taxpayers of Twin Falls County more than they are now paying.

Stephen R. Bancroft

Stephen R. Bancroft, 49, 18 years certified public accountant, high school - Boise High, University of Oregon, Eugene. 25 years experience in the accounting field and one year on the City Council. Many years auditing municipal entities.

Budget of offering citizens necessary service at lowest possible cost. Council should take greater effort to understand and get to the bottom of the budget and see each department is not getting too large and budget is as low as possible.

The people have expressed

Once again this will depend on the budget hearing after Jan 1st. Each item will have to stand on its own merits and whether it is in the best interests of the city.

The joint city-county planning committee should be reviewed for possible restructuring and clarification of purpose. Once financed by the county, the city is part of the county, so avoid duplication of time.

I do not believe the city does extend sewers outside the city, but that they allow a person to hook up to the existing lines at their expense.

Yes, if the property owners involved wish to pay the cost through an LID. The city should participate only in organization and management.

Extension of the downtown mall would depend entirely on property owners involved in the area concerned; the requirements of an LID would have to be met by 100% of those people.

Parking meters have always been controversial and have disadvantages, but until the revenue the city can be found elsewhere, we might be consider by fact that most other cities' parking fees exceed ours by 3 to 5 times.

Any exact "ideal size population" for Twin Falls could vary from one extreme to the other depending on opinion expressed. I believe it would be dangerous to generally limit the city's growth.

Specifically, Blue Lakes North and Addison Avenue between the Five points should be widened. I am not completely sold on the highway department plan for North Five Points, but it is possibly the only answer for that intersection.

The master plan that is being developed for the regional airport will provide sufficient information as to its feasibility, both economically and financially. Until this information is obtained, there is no way a decision could be made.

Gordon Cox, 50, resident of Twin Falls for 21 years, area Sales Representative for A.M. Castley & Co., Steel & Aluminum Distributors; education, USN "Class of '43"; President, Twin Falls Kiwanis Club 1964; & Lt. Gov., Utah-Idaho District of Kiwanis 1973-74; YMCA Board of Directors 1965-1970; Chairman 1966-68.

The biggest single problem faced by cities in Idaho, how to make growth work for our benefit. We must assume the good and avoid the bad consequences of change. By stressing the goal of "quality in the years ahead, we will profit monetarily and socially.

The city should develop an ongoing capital budgeting system (five year minimum) as well as a project control system. I would also like a positive program for clear visibility at intersections and upgrading of playground maintenance.

Not unless it is restricted to become effective. The city and county should reach agreement on the proposed goals before hiring another planner.

The county should assume financial support since residents now pay twice.

The logical answer is to make it financially attractive to build within town. Private organizations may have to buy valuable areas for preservation, but a city county comprehensive plan would provide guidelines for growth.

One top priority for sewer extension should be within the city limits, but does provide this service to people located along existing laterals who need all requirements of those inside the city plus some additional costs.

Until the financial obligation of the city for downtown parking lots is satisfied, we have to support paid meters.

If has been comfortable between 20 and 25,000 for a long time. Natural forces, employment opportunity, the availability of housing have maintained this level. I don't feel legal or other artificial measures are necessary.

The State Highway Department presented a satisfactory plan to reduce problems on Blue Lake Blvd. North from North Five Points to Pole Line Road. The city should positively support this program. Also the city should support publicizing and signing alternate routes for downtown traffic and take steps reducing the number of blind intersections.

No. No, Twin Falls currently operates a fine airport which serves this region, and I do not feel we should finance another airport at this time. The proposed location is too close, and Twin Falls must attempt to minimize the negative impact of the proposed regional airport.

Margaret K. Youtz, 30, housewife. Grew up here, graduated from Twin Falls High School, BA, MBA, financial economist-FDIC, Washington, Arthur Andersen & Co., New York. Married two children. Have returned to Twin Falls to live and raise family.

The greatest single problem facing the City of Twin Falls is the challenge of meeting the costs of goods and services which the taxpayers expect from the City without unduly raising taxes to counteract inflationary influences.

The city should develop an ongoing capital budgeting system (five year minimum) as well as a project control system. I would also like a positive program for clear visibility at intersections and upgrading of playground maintenance.

The City and County are now acting concurrently to return and reorganize their staff. It is my personal opinion that it has cost too much and the results have been too little.

During a recent survey of priorities expected by the people from their local government, it was clear that street maintenance and construction was number one.

This practice encourages contiguous growth to the City and discourages urban sprawl by seeking stronger enforcement of health and environmental conditions in the county. This would cause any new development to have closer to the city limits where utility services can be utilized.

So long as there are taxpayers within city limits not in a system, the city would be remiss to forget them. Any extension of services outside town boundaries must be paid for by new customers.

This is a decision of the property owners and would be financed by them. If it is economically feasible for the property owners I give it full support.

The principle of the meter is to regulate parking. In those areas of highest density a nominal fee can prevent traffic snarls. But on either side of Main, parking should be free, rewarding the shopper who parks and walks.

Strong as the quality of our environment and services remains high, the town can grow. If taxpayers insist upon quality, the population and growth of our city will regulate itself.

Residents of cities, counties, towns, etc., should join the SIRAA, because of our present facilities at Joslin Field. So long as they can be expanded for future growth, it would be a boondoggle to throw money away in the name of an uncertain need.

Stephen R. Lincoln, age 31, resident of city for 9 years, general practitioner of dentistry graduate of Twin Falls High School, BA, MSA, Washington, Arthur Anderson & Co., New York. Married two children. Have returned to Twin Falls to live and raise family.

The greatest single problem facing the City of Twin Falls is the challenge of meeting the costs of goods and services which the taxpayers expect from the City without unduly raising taxes to counteract inflationary influences.

It's a common problem faced by cities in Idaho, how to make growth work for our benefit. We must assume the good and avoid the bad consequences of change. By stressing the goal of "quality in the years ahead, we will profit monetarily and socially.

Yes, "I" feel the downtown mall concept can be extended at least four blocks in either direction. The City, by ordinance, would participate in the cost of future improvements in this area, but the major cost would be borne according to ordinance, by the property owners themselves.

I support paid meters at the current rates. I do this because the added tax base provided by the merchants in the downtown area outweighs the slight loss of income due to inflation that a raise in rates would cause.

I am not a fan of the downtown mall concept but can be extended at least four blocks in either direction. The City, by ordinance, would participate in the cost of future improvements in this area, but the major cost would be borne according to ordinance, by the property owners themselves.

The major source of congestion involves Blue Lakes, North and the Washington School corner. The State has plans to rectify both problems. However, these are expensive and they have done a lot of foot dragging. Blue Lakes is busy because it collects traffic from the north end; people should utilize Main.

A regional airport authority would be maintained by property taxes. I have never understood why when a private town proper is in operation, the city should be forced to pay the bulk of costs related to this item, education, highways, etc. Add the fact that we already have an airport which serves us as good a manner as the air traffic volume justifies, we should not burden the taxpayer with yet another unnecessary program.

CSI roof samples tested

TWIN FALLS — CSI president Dr. James T. Taylor says progress has been made in determining liability for deteriorating roofs on the campus.

Originally, none of the parties involved in the design, materials or construction of the Fine Arts Building roof or the Shields Building roof were willing to consider responsibility for the urethane insulation which was buckling the roof surfaces. However, Dr. Taylor said Friday a recent conference with CTA Architects, representatives of the Upjohn Co. supplying the urethane, and general contractor Nielsen and Millers Inc. has cleared them somewhat in determining liability.

The college has decided to take a sample of the roof and have it analyzed by chemists in laboratory tests. They hope these tests will provide some concrete information about what caused the roof to buckle.

"Within 30 days we should know the lab results," Dr. Taylor said. "Then it will just be a matter of sitting down around the table and working it out."

Taylor said the CSI may also be partially responsible for failing to maintain the roof adequately.

In the meantime, Taylor said the CTA Architects are preparing bid documents which should enable CSI to determine the costs for needed repairs. He said that his original estimate of $100,000 was too high. Discussions at the conference led him to believe that repairs will cost about half that much.

"Bid documents will be put out in late spring when the temperature and weather conditions will be perfect for refurbishing the roofs," Taylor said.

Dr. Taylor hopes to have a determination of liability by the first of the year. "If we can't agree as to liability, we all have to get into a friendly lawsuit," Taylor said.

He also explained that all the parties involved carry "error and omission insurance" which should cover roof repair liability.

Solar collectors under construction

SCCAA builds solar collectors

TWIN FALLS — Four solar heaters were constructed Friday at the National Guard Armory as part of the South Central Community Action Agency's Alternative Energy Workshop.

Guest advisers Ken Smith, Seattle, Wash., and Lee Johnson, Portland, Ore., and volunteers interested in solar energy built the 20-square-foot panel or "flat plate solar collectors."

They will be sent to other Community Action offices in the state for use as demonstration models.

Each of the functioning models can heat enough water to meet an average person's needs and the four together would provide hot water for the average family of four, according to Johnson.

The SCAA plans to construct a 150-square-foot heater on the roof of the Twin Falls Food Co-op in the near future.

The construction of a collector is fairly simple, Johnson said. Within a wooden box, galvanized iron pipes are attached to a sheet of corrugated steel. The pipes are connected at both ends of the rectangular box so they form a constant flow pattern that feeds into and releases from a water storage tank.

The collector box sets at a diagonal, and as water in the pipes is heated by the sun, it rises and enters the storage tank and forces cold water back into the pipes.

The pipes and corrugated steel are painted black to absorb the sun's heat.

Johnson estimated the cost of a 90 square foot collector at about $3 per square foot.

The Twin Falls workshop was funded by the Idaho Economic Opportunity Office.

Three-way race for mayor develops at Oakley

OAKLEY — Voters here have a three-way choice for mayor and five candidates are running for two council seats.

Two challengers are bidding to unseat Mayor Thomas Miller. They are Jay Gorringe and 22-year-old Howard (Dutch) Robinson.

The council race includes former Oakley Mayor Glen Elgin, Maurice Matthews, Robert Spangler, Kent Hale and Kendall Dayley.

Tom Miller

Miller is a mining engineer and Gorringe has made no issue of his absence from town.

But Miller cites public works in the city, including the new water system. He also would like to see a city sewer system.

Miller was elected for a two-year term as mayor in 1973 and will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Nathan Elgin.

Jay Gorrige

Gorrige is an Oakley native, retired from the Air Force and working for the Oakley Camel Co.

He says he will be available to residents and disapproves of the methods of government in the city.

Dutch Robinson

Robinson is a student at College of Southern Idaho and a graduate of Oakley High School.

He says he wants to see a recreation program for younger people, particularly in the city's July 4 celebration. He says the west side of town needs more water; the main line is too small and it wants the city cleaned up so residents can have greater pride in it.

Glen Elgin

Elgin is a farmer and rancher. An Oakley native, he headed Oakley government for eight years and served on the council twice.

Elgin cites his long experience and calls for a city budget within the means of the taxpayer.

Bob Spangler

Spangler is an insurance broker and house decorator who came to Oakley 30 years ago.

He offers no promises for the voters except to do his best to run an administration he selected.

Kendall Dayley

Dayley is principal of Oakley Elementary School and has been in the Cassia County school system 21 years. He served seven years on the FDR Burley Stake high council, is past president, has the Silver Beaver award in scouting and has served as a P.T. leader.

Maurice Matthews

Matthews is another Oakley native and served 21 years as Oakley LDS First Ward clerk.

He has voiced no specific goals, but offers his services in representing the people of Oakley.

Kent Hale

Hale is a stone quarry owner and Oakley native.

Like Dayley, he believes Oakley should retain its small town image while developing.

TWIN FALLS — The Old Bug House is gone.

A demolition crew has leveled the building which formerly housed the entomology lab for the U.S. Department of Agriculture at Falls Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

The department leased the building for nearly 50 years before its owner, Amalgamated Sugar Co., decided to sell the property.

John Price Associates Inc., Salt Lake City, Utah, development firm, purchased the property earlier this year.

The plan to begin construction of an Ernst Home Center next spring. A subsidiary of Pay 'N Save Corp., Seattle, Wash., the outlet will be a total home improvement center, according to a spokesman for John Price.

Seniors at Buhl hold fete

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH

Times-News Writer

BÜHL — Guests at the Senior Citizen's Halloween party Thursday were greeted by all types of witches, goblins and even an ogre.

Special guests were Mayor Ted Pence and two of the five candidates for city council in Tuesday's election. Jerry Hawkins and David Monroe fielded innumerable questions regarding the proposed dog leash law and complaints about dirty streets and disruption of garbage.

Many of the seniors felt cost of administering a dog leash law, if voters approve it Tuesday, should be borne by the dog owners. But the candidates pointed out it is the dogs without owners causing the problem. Cost of keeping and disposing of them must be paid by the taxpayers, Pence said.

Costume winners included Marie-Burnett, best woman's costume; Nancy Williamson, Castleford, funniest; Wyatt Strickman, best man's costume, and Edith Peterman, Castleford, most original.

The same dedicated craftsmanship that created the world's first quartz watch, and the world's first quartz watch movement, is now training the second generation of quartz watch manufacturers. All Seiko quartz watches, even the most economical are made to the same high standards of accuracy and reliability. Even in the sophisticated quartz category, as in mechanical watches, Seiko makes all parts including quartz oscillators and integrated circuits.

Seiko started committed to quartz in 1969. And to day we sell more quartz watches than anybody else in the world. That's why we say "The Seiko Quartz" is changing the world's standard of accuracy.

Heroin increase expected

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — With a bumper opium poppy crop ready for harvest in Mexico, federal officials are worried about their ability to stop the flow of heroin across the border this winter.

After a congressman appealed to President Ford about the urgency of this crisis along the Tex-Mex border, the officials cited these new impediments:

- The Drug Enforcement Administration budget was cut along with those of other drug related federal agencies.

- The Supreme Court placed added restrictions on searches of automobiles at inland border patrol checkpoints.

The Privacy Act which went into effect at the end of September subjects federal intelligence agents to $5,000 fines for illegally disclosing certain information to other drug agents at the local level.

Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grants that supported federal-local narcotics task forces in Houston and San Antonio ran out and cooperative efforts were suspended.

The disbanded San Antonio task force alone arrested 124 persons and seized more than $3.9 million in heroin and cocaine in the first six months of this year.

Sadat visits Texas

Houston (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, ending a whirlwind Texas visit with a round-table session and a gift of a nickel-plated Texas Ranger pistol Saturday flew to Jacksonville, Fla., for a visit with an oil millionaire and President Ford.

Sadat, his family and aides will take over the 30-room mansion of millionaire Raymond K. Mason, chairman of The Charter Co., which has extensive oil and banking interests in the Midwest.

President Ford will join Sadat Sunday morning, establishing a base of operations at a borrowed private residence in the fashionable Deerwood section. Neither Sadat nor Ford have scheduled any public appearances in Jacksonville.

In Texas, the Egyptian president and his official party were guests at the Greenwich Farms-owned by oilman Hugh Hoy Marshall, president of the American Arab Society.

At the conclusion of the two-hour rodeo and western show, Marshall and Texas Ranger Capt. William Wilson presented Sadat with a commemorative Texas Ranger commemorative pistol.

Marshall made a direct reference to U.S. foreign policy in presenting the nickel-plated ivory-gripped revolver.

"Out of the sorrow and anguish I hold in my heart for the great disparity of U.S. arms and aid allocations, I would like to present this commemorative Texas Ranger pistol," Marshall told Sadat. "May this pistol serve as an installment for defensive arms and aid to Egypt as a symbol for the end of wanton aggression."

"A policy which implements one country with weapons for the aggressive seizure of land from another seems hardly fair."

Resigned

DAVID Packard, a California millionaire, has resigned his position as President Ford's election campaign committee chairman.

Synthetic fuel bill 'railroaded'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has let itself railroaded into the verge of approving a $6 billion government loan program for synthetic fuel companies to soften the impacts on communities near the environmental projects.

Wirth said he is but against guaranteeing loans to stimulate production of synthetic fuels. But he said Congress should not "rush headlong into a program of this importance."

Although Wirth did not name any names, a House employee who followed the synthetic fuels program said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Democratic presidential candidate, appeared to be behind the push for the loan guarantees.

"Frankly," the employee said, "it seemed as though Sen. Jackson rushed this thing through so he could take the initiative from the White House."

Wirth also noted other provisions had been added to nearly double the cost of President Ford's original $6 billion plan to speed creation of an industry to produce synthetic fuels such as gas and oil from coal or oil from shale rock.

Those new provisions requested by the administration after the initial plan was submitted to

Ford's campaign effort shaky

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It seems hard to imagine, but President Ford appears to be running into some of the same campaign organization troubles as Richard Nixon and George McGovern three years ago.

To be sure, the two campaigns, in 1972, had vastly different problems, but the President's 1976 effort seems to be combining the worst of each. Only the fact that there is no single Democratic campaign to compare it with spares the current Ford operation from niggles of imminent disaster.

The latest symptom of trouble at PFC — the President Ford Committee — is the departure of finance chairman David Packard. Before that, it was the resignation of political director Leo Nunn. And earlier there was a tempest over the remarks of campaign chairman Edward "Bo" Callaway to the effect that Vice President Rockefeller was a dragon in the Ford family.

Embarrassments of this sort plagued both presidential candidates in 1972. Before the campaign started, there were White House leaks suggesting an effort to dump Vice President Spiro T. Agnew from the ticket. This unseated the GOP right almost as much as the anti-Rockefeller fall exercised the party's opposite wing this fall.

In 1972, Nixon's Committee to Reelect the President was run from the White House. Ford vowed to keep his office staff and his campaign organization separate this time, but stories keep cropping up suggesting that White House advisers, notably Donald Rumsfeld and Robert H. Hartmann, are mobilizing.

Meanwhile, the indications of disagreement within the campaign committee have taken on a decided regularity. Feuds erupted both on the campaign trail and in Washington headquarters, with veteran Lawrence O'Brien once threatening to walk out if reforms were not instituted and side Gordon Weil, a long-standing forerunner of an informal dispute.

The crowning contretemps

may have been the achievement of a two-headed press secretary — Richard Dougherty with the candidate

headquarters.

There is some difference with PFC. One of Nunn's complaints — leaked to the press — was that Callaway hadn't appointed even one press secretary. He also objected to the slow pace of organization both here and in the field and in general

suggested the entire campaign was a high league operation.

Political campaign organizations are like other bureaucracies.

Drugs seized in Wyoming

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI) — Twenty-seven persons have been charged if Rock Springs and Casper and $750,000 in heroin, cocaine and other drugs confiscated in Wyoming's largest drug seizure, authorities said Friday.

Six persons were charged at Rock Springs and the remainder named in state and federal charges at Casper. The large drug seizure was made at Rock Springs by local, state and federal agents.

Roger Sims of the Sweetwater City County Task Force said the investigation began in Sweetwater County when it was discovered the Rock Springs-Green River area was becoming the central drug distribution point for Wyoming.

He released details on where the men were arrested at Rock Springs and Green River or where the drugs were seized. Arraignments were scheduled later.

Sims said one of the men who will face state charges will be Robert Evans, 33, of Edmonton, Alberta who was sentenced to three years this week by the U.S. District Court in Cheyenne for possession with intent to distribute heroin and cocaine. He was also ordered deported to Canada following his prison term.

Sims said other arrests may be made in Sweetwater County and in California and Texas. He said it was no coincidence that the arrests came almost at the same time in Rock Springs and Casper.

Natrona County Attorney Dan Burke said at Casper the arrests there would put a cramp in street traffic in the town. Two of the suspects arrested at Casper were charged by both federal and state authorities.

The investigation ended a six-month investigation, he said using undercover agents.

Creech wants death, not life in prison

BOISE (UPI) — Condemned killer Thomas Eugene Creech, 25, prefers death to a life in prison.

Creech was convicted last month of two first-degree murders and will be sentenced Monday. First-degree murder carries a mandatory death sentence in Idaho.

In a statement from the Ada County Jail Friday, Creech said if he could get help in prison so that he would never kill again if he got out he would like a life sentence.

"There's always the chance that I'd have a chance to escape," Creech said. "But if I had no chance to get help or no chance to get out, then I'd rather get hung and get it over with."

If he is hanged, however, Creech vowed to make his executioner's role a difficult one.

New energy policy advocated to ICL

BOISE (UPI) — The former energy director for Oregon, Joe Schatz, told the Idaho Conservation League today it is "ridiculous to simply slow up a bad trend" of energy use and instead called for a new global energy strategy.

"It is a guideline that is falling down. I don't care about its velocity, much as whether it's going this way or not," Schatz said in an apology to simple conservation as the solution to the energy crisis.

Speaking to the conservation league's energy workshop at Boise State University, Schatz suggested the level of energy supply is just as important as a stable flow.

The debate is not economic growth versus no growth or quality lifestyle versus a return to the earth—these are烟幕弹," he said. "The world should begin to make tradeoffs of energy not based on what is economically good but on what kind of physical resources we can afford which will continue to provide us with energy."

Schatz added his concept of energy stability means the opportunity for peoples to have uninterrupted flow of resources. We have to settle into resource consumption which can be more balanced worldwide.

A policy of simple conservation will aid achievement of a stable energy balance in the world. "If we conserve to buy time to make changes which will allow us to survive, but if this is done in a piecemeal way to protect national and corporate boundaries, the sliding down will be even worse," he said.

Schatz said energy decisions must be made on a global basis now that "there are no copies." He pointed out most of the materials produced in the United States depend on resources outside this country. "We're looking at a world of interlocking resources trying to maintain national sovereignties."

He said the countries of the world are "using each other's resources to fight over each other's resources." Schatz added all nations try to get the most energy the easiest way possible.

'Drowning victim'

WATER rescue and treatment of an injured person is demonstrated by Ron Steber, in diving gear, for a class of Magic Valley Ambulance and County search and rescue unit members. Training was held in the YM-YWCA pool Thursday.

Rescue staffs train for water rescues

TWIN FALLS — Rescue of injured or unconscious persons from the water is being covered in training for the Twin Falls County Search and Rescue unit members and Magic Valley Ambulance personnel.

The training program is being conducted at the YM-YWCA swimming pool by Ron Steber, regional coordinator for Emergency Medical Services with the Department of Health and Welfare.

The training is part of a program to prepare search and rescue personnel for Air Medics classification. This is one of several training programs for ambulance crews, members and the search-and-rescue unit which work together in emergencies.

Choyce Edwards, Magic Valley Ambulance owner, said:

In the training session Thursday at the Y pool, emergency medical service trainees were shown proper handling of an injured person under water, bringing the victim to the surface, splinting a fracture while in the water and placing the injured or unconscious person on float boards for removal from the water without further injury.

Additional training for Air Medics, a new classification for the local groups, will be held early in 1976, Edwards said.

The additional training will equip Search and Rescue and ambulance personnel for assisting victims of all types of accidents. In earlier training they have worked with bringing people from mountain or canyon walls by rope, using helicopters, boats and other equipment in reaching injured persons.

PAUL — Robert K. Larsen, mayor in 1971, Wilson is trying to turn the tables again Tuesday.

Two incumbents, Mildred Simpson and Otto Riedlinger, face one challenger for the Paul council. He is Jack Woodward, defeated by Mrs. Simpson two years ago.

Robert Larsen

Larsen is Minidoka County School District psychologist and has been in the school system since consolidation, having taught at Paul High School before that.

Calling his first term "on-the-job training," Larsen cites an auditor remark that Paul is "a conservative, well-run little city." He points to completion of the sewage lagoon system, acquisition of city equipment and establishing of an inventory system on material and supplies as accomplishments during his four years.

He wants the city to consider possible senior citizen housing and parks and recreation expansion. He also believes equipment upgrading should continue and promises to remain receptive to residents' comments and problems.

Harold Wilson

Wilson spent 16 years in city government. He is general manager of Art Center of Idaho, past president of the Paul Lions Club and past director of the Paul Chamber of Commerce.

He says he has "no burning reason" for running again, but thinks everybody should have a choice. He does question recent equipment purchases, saying such purchases should be looked into more deeply before action.

Wilson proposes appointing a citizens screening committee to advise the council and believes each councilman would have charge of a department, including it budgeting. He would also like to see a master plan for Paul. The former mayor opposes federal grants, but suggests federal revenue sharing to fund a system of storm drains and more neighborhood parks. He also proposes relocation of truck routes out of the residential areas.

Mildred Simpson

Mrs. Simpson was elected for a two-year term in 1971. She is past president of the American Legion Auxiliary and chaired the hot lunch program three years.

She says she enjoys serving the community on the council and believes her experience has given her insight into city operations. She strongly defends equipment purchases and also is proud of the auditor's statement about a well-run city.

Jack Woodward

Woodward moved to Paul upon his retirement as a firefighter in 1972. Two years ago he was named to the city's board of appeals. He was named Elk of the Year at the Burley Lodge in 1973.

Woodward believes his experience helping large fire and operations and maintenance departments would help him in city government. He says he can bring new ideas to government and has no axe to grind.

Otto Riedlinger

Riedlinger is completing his ninth year on the city council. He works for the highway department.

The veteran councilman says he has no particular goals in mind but there are a few city streets that still need blacktopping.

A man in a city a accomplishment, he listed the sewer lagoon system.

Total contracts up

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Total September contracts for future construction in Idaho are up 72 per cent, according to a Nov. 5, report of the F.W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company.

Oil countries still hungry

Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — Despite their oil wealth, the countries of the oil cartel that sets worldwide prices have considerable problems just feeding their 365 million people, according to a leading food researcher and author.

Lester R. Brown, president of Worldwatch Institute, a self-styled "earthy warning system," research organization, said in an interview that "almost all the OPEC countries are food-deficit countries to some degree."

OPEC is the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, a group of 13 nations in the Middle East, Africa, Central America and elsewhere.

Brown envisions an increase in agricultural investments in just about all OPEC countries to meet their needs, but he emphasizes that they are limited in what they can do by their "preindustrial" state of development.

The author of several books on the world's food problems, Brown has just issued a scaled-down version of his next study, "The Politics and Responsibility of the North American Dreammarket."

In it, he asserts that "the level of food consumption, especially of high protein foods, in OPEC countries is modest. Given the relatively low food consumption base, many new petrodollars will become food dollars."

Brown predicts a meteoric rise in food consumption per person in countries such as Iraq, Iran and Venezuela, where exports are large and populations are relatively small.

"Overall," he says, "the scale of food imports to OPEC countries seems certain to increase dramatically in the years ahead.... Considering the 'historical' neglect of agriculture in most of these countries, any sharp increase in demand will have to be satisfied initially by imports."

Hookers' clients arrested

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A corporate lawyer, an electrical engineer and a utility lineman have become the first men ever arrested by vice officers here on charges of soliciting for prostitution.

"They didn't give us a hard time," said an arresting officer. "They were too astonished."

The men were arrested at The Royal Jester massage parlor Thursday night by policewomen who had infiltrated the building and posed as employees. Police said male officers first arrested a female masseuse on charges of soliciting for prostitution. They led her off to jail, leaving the parlor unguarded. The three policewomen ran in, sat down and minutes later were offered $50 by the suspects to perform various sex acts.

Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — "Israel is a fact," Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said in Chicago Friday, winding up a two-day visit to Chicago.

That was Sadat's reaction when asked about a report that he had said he would applaud if somebody wiped Israel off the face of the earth. He added, in a press conference, "How could I be an anti-Semite while I am Semitic myself? This is ridiculous, really. I'm uncompromising Zionist. Because since Zionism came to our area, terrorists came with Zionists.... We have nothing at all against Jews or the Jewish religion. But Zionists exploit religion for expansion. That's my notion."

Sadat was asked if he had invited Mayor Daley to visit Egypt. "Yes," he said. "I extended that invitation yesterday. Yes, he accepted it. But he didn't set the time.... I'm very delighted to meet Mayor [Richard J.] Daley, really.... In spite of the fact they have told me in Washington that he is a very tough man. He is very tough — but very sincere, and a man who speaks, who has dedicated himself for peace and love, and really I have great admiration for him."

Following the press conference, he and his party took off for Houston.

Sadat was met at the airport by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, who had flown in from Washington to accompany Sadat to Houston and the Johnson Space Center there.

Sadat was asked at the press conference if he had made any specific arms request of President Ford.

"I didn't come here to ask for arms," he said. "I came here to consolidate the relations between our two countries, and understanding, because this is quite essential. Apart from arms, even apart from any other aid, it is essential to have the best relations with the United States, so that we can work out peace in our area — especially when the United States, as I said, holds all the cards of this game in its hands."

"In my discussions with President Ford, we have discussed this problem in the outline only. There is nothing specific. And as I said before, I didn't bring with me a shopping list."

A reporter pressed the point, asking if Ford had agreed "in principle" to supply some kind of military equipment at some time in the future.

"We didn't reach any specific agreement at all," said Sadat. "It was an agreement I'd have brought some military man with me in the delegation. There is no military man in my delegation at all."

'Pot' legalization suit filed in SF

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws filed suit today in Superior Court contending that laws prohibiting cultivation of marijuana violate the state and federal constitutions.

The suit alleges that California marijuana statutes prohibiting private possession and cultivation of marijuana are an invasion of privacy.

The group cited a recent decision of the Alaska Supreme Court in which the right to cultivate marijuana for private use was upheld.

Blood drawings set this week

TWIN FALLS — Only days after tiny trick-or-treating Dracula hung up their capes for another season, the Red Cross Blood Drawings will be held.

Carey Collins, newly selected blood chairman for the Red Cross, announces a blood drawing for Tuesday in Twin Falls instead of the usually scheduled Monday. Collins replaces former chairman Ivan Rood.

"Rood has done a very good job for our community for the past year and a half," says Dave Nelson, a member of the board of directors of the Twin Falls chapter of the Red Cross. "He has successfully met every quota assigned him."

The quota for Tuesday is 200 pints. The drawing will be held at St. Edward's Parish Hall from 1-7 p.m.

Kimberly will hold a blood drawing on Monday from 2-6 p.m. at the Kimberly Grange Hall.

All donors this Tuesday will receive a free "Be Our Guest" card courtesy of McDonald's Hamburgers entitling the recipient to a free food item.

BURLEY — Even though 10 candidates are running for city council, Burley will still be short one city official following Tuesday's election.

Mayor Chuck Shadwick must appoint someone to fill the vacancy left by the Monday resignation of Jerry Viegert, who has moved from the city. Shadwick prefers to wait until after Tuesday's election to make his choice, an indication that someone in those 10 candidates might be considered if defeated.

Seven men, including one incumbent, are running for three council seats with four-year terms. The other three, also including one incumbent, are bidding for a single two-year term.

Up for the four-year terms are incumbent Cloyd D. Taylor, Ray Barlow, Donald J. Chessman, J. A. Henderson, Ralph W. Rasmussen, John Struchen, and Stephen D. Westfall.

Incumbent Leonard F. King faces David A. Peck and J. Dale Smith for the two-year term.

Cloyd Taylor

Taylor operates Price's Cafe and is completing his first term on the council. He was raised in the Burley area and has worked with the Boys Scouts for nearly 30 years.

Taylor stresses his experience and the ability to give necessary time to the job.

He says the entire council has worked together for whatever the majority decided and believes that those decisions have been in the best interests of the city. He wants the city to progress within a balanced budget.

Ray Barlow

Barlow owns Burley Beverage Co. and is a former farmer. He spent five years as a researcher and teacher of agricultural economics at the Universities of Idaho and Arizona and believes that work, particularly in research, will help him as a councilman.

He is past president of the Burley Rotary Club, served on the library board and instructed in the Burley Ski School at Pomerelle Ski Resort.

Barlow said he has some good ideas for governmental programs in improvement, but doesn't want to bring them up as part of the campaign.

Don Chessman

Chessman is maintenance superintendent at the Ponderosa Inn. He came to Burley six years ago from Boundary County where he was airport manager, and stresses his military business education and training.

He is commander of the Burley American Legion junior VFW commander of the Northern Idaho Civil Air Patrol.

Chessman says he is making no promises as a candidate. He believes "Burley needs better government and I'll do my best with the experience and everything I have."

He says he wants better recreation facilities to "get teenagers off the streets" and programs without adult supervision.

J. A. Henderson

Westfall — graduated this year from the University of Idaho and is with his father in public accounting. He is the grandson of retiring councilman L. M. Morgan.

Westfall feels he has a duty to serve the community. He sees Burley as a leader in Henderson spent 25 years with J. C. Penney Co. before opening a clothing store of his own in Burley. He is past president of the Downtown Merchants and the Burley Parking Association and a past director of the Burley Chamber of Commerce.

Henderson wants a "realistic budget" for Burley and stresses his business training and experience as qualifications for office.

Ralph Rasmussen

Rasmussen is a Delek native who retired to Burley as an armchair legislator.

He says he wants Burley to "maintain its present status" while continuing to progress. He is concerned about taxes and wants proposed improvements to be considered carefully by the council.

John Struchen

Struchen is a native of Burley and is co-owner and manager of J. O. Supply and has served as vice commander of the Min-Cassia Search and Rescue unit.

He says his business experience could help implement better business practices for the city. He believes the city should grow "within its means" and pledges to listen to the people and be their voice on the council.

He cited complaints about irregular garbage pickups and torn-up streets. Struchen says the police department is a fine one, but is undermined.

Steve Westfall

Westfall — graduated this year from the University of Idaho and is with his father in public accounting. He is the grandson of retiring councilman L. M. Morgan.

Westfall feels he has a duty to serve the community. He sees Burley as a leader in planning among Idaho cities because of its excellent city engineer and an excellent city planner with consultants helping on utility development.

He believes visible city service, police, fire, electrical and water, must be continually upgraded in equipment and trained personnel.

Leonard King

King was appointed to the council in early 1974 to fill the vacancy left by the death of Jerry Wyatt. He owns and operates J. F. King Construction. He was named Elk of the Year in 1974.

He is the first North Burley representative on the council and has attended every meeting except one special one since appointed. He chairs streets, police, sanitation and cemetery and serves on the airport committee.

King wants to continue service as the city completes projects already begun. He believes his construction and business experience have saved the city money and that his two years on the council have made him better acquainted with the problems and duties.

David Peck

Peck is a government teacher at Burley High School, coming here from Salt Lake City seven years ago.

He believes in an open government, so that people know what is going on and can voice informed opinion. He pledges to inform the public and allow them input into the decisions.

Peck says he believes no one should receive favored treatment from government.

Dale Smith

Smith comes from Malta 11 years ago and is a wholesale and retail gas distributor.

He calls for "clean, safe and economic growth," upgrading of commercial buildings and homes, clean streets and alleys and constant improvement of the police department as a "pay-as-you-go" basis.

Gooding draws blood Wednesday

GOODING — The Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Gooding Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the War Memorial Hall. Quota is 125 pints.

There is a "terrific" need for blood replacement, according to Mrs. Pat Klinger, chairman. One man has used 44 pints and several other area residents have needed 10 pints each, she said.

The area used 132 pints since the last drawing in July. Gooding has drawings three times a year. Mrs. Klinger said, but this quota is "a little hard to reach," and she urged every possible donor to participate.

Solons to meet public

TWIN FALLS — The chamber of commerce is sponsoring a program entitled, "Meet Your Legislators."

The six legislators from Twin Falls County will be at the chamber office on Nov. 13 during the afternoon. Any person interested in talking to their state legislators privately should call the chamber for an appointment.

Each appointment is for 30 minutes and will start at 1:20 p.m. and the last appointment is made for 4:30 p.m.

Ten Appointments are scheduled for the afternoon and are made on a first come, first served basis.

Gas firm announces earnings

BOISE (UPI) — Intermountain Gas Co. Friday announced earnings of $2.14 per share of common stock outstanding for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1975.

This compared to $1.89 for 1974 and $2.24 for 1973. R. D. Grimm, Intermountain president and chief executive officer, said while the 1974 decline in earnings had been reversed, the company is not earning the return he believes it requires.

Grimm attributed the improvement in earnings this year to the full-year effect of the July 1974 rate relief, new customer additions and colder weather than last year.

Ravencroft praises Andrus

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Republican Chairman Vern Ravencroft today praised Gov. Cecil Andrus' vision of an alliance among water groups for public purpose water use but criticized the Democratic governor for ignoring the need for upstream storage.

Referring to remarks Andrus made to the Pacific Northwest Waterways Association convention in Boise, Ravencroft said, "You can't have water for fish, wildlife, a free-flowing Snake River, and power generation without planning for upstream storage."

Ravencroft, 531 Third Ave. W., reported someone attempted to break into his home but failed to gain entry. About $20 damage to his back door was reported.

Mrs. Chester Hall, 419 Madison St., told police someone shot a BB into her living room Friday night, breaking a front picture window. She estimated damage at $40.

Don Joy, 406 Madison, said someone broke a window out of his 1969 small car, possibly pranksters. He estimated damage at $75.

Gary Funderburg told police he was driving down Blue Lakes Boulevard North when some youngsters, hiding in bushes near the street threw eggs and tomatoes at his vehicle. One solid object was thrown through a rear window breaking it. He said damage would amount to about $40.

Several automobile owners and home owners reported their property plastered by tomatoes, other vegetables and eggs but other than clean up no damage was reported.

Burn victim still critical

GOODING — Frank Edward Bolton, 27, Gooding, remained in critical condition Saturday in the burn center at Brooks Army General Hospital, San Antonio, Tex., where he was flown by military plane Friday night.

Bolton was critically burned in a futile attempt to rescue his 3-year-old son, Frank Edward "Bolton Jr.", from a house fire Friday morning. The child died in a bedroom of the log house which caught fire early Friday.

Mrs. Bolton and a 3-month-old baby, Daniel Bolton, escaped the fire which destroyed the Bolton home.

Bolton was treated at Gooding Memorial Hospital and taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, Twin Falls, by ambulance Friday afternoon. He was transported to Brooks burn center Friday night in critical condition.

The transfer to Brooks required a team of burn specialists being flown to Twin Falls Friday afternoon to "stabilize" the man's condition. The military plane left the team here and returned to its home base in Illinois.

A large C-9 military craft was then flown in from Texas to land at Mountain Home and a helicopter sent to Twin Falls to pick up Bolton and the burn team. The entire group then boarded the C-9 at Mountain Home for the trip to Texas.

Officials at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and Mountain Home Air Force Base spent most of Friday afternoon arranging the transfer of Bolton.

TWIN FALLS — Even though most educators are women, they play little part in administering Idaho public schools, an Idaho Department of Education report shows.

The 1974-75 statistical report, with more than 50 pages of graphs and tables, was compiled from data submitted by the school districts.

The statistics show there are no women superintendents or assistant superintendents in any of Idaho's 115 school districts governing 166,125 students.

Lelia Lewis, pupil and personnel consultant for the department of education said, "There is a pattern of discrimination," and added she knew of 17 women in Idaho education systems who were qualified to be superintendents.

THIS eight foot sturgeon, estimated to be 30 to 40 years old and weighing between 175 and 200 pounds, floated to the shore of the Snake River Saturday in the Hagerman area near the Owsley Bridges — Mrs. W.C. Lawyer, told the Idaho Fish and Game Department officials she saw it from the window of her home. The fish was dead when washed ashore.

School officials show bias toward men

With 74 positions classed as "other district administrators" in districts throughout Idaho, women hold only five of the posts.

Second of Two Series

Principal jobs also go to men in most cases.

Principal jobs also go to men in most cases.

Women account for only two per cent of all secondary principals in the state or four out of 212 principals.

None of these four women is a high school principal, Mrs. Lewis said. Most are employed by the state's public schools. But only 35 or 37 per cent are women. The other 177, or 83 per cent of the elementary principals are men.

Barry Bull, planning and statistics consultant for the department of education, said women may be discouraged from pursuing a principal or administrative post because so few of the jobs go to women.

They then may turn to positions where women are more accepted, for instance, as counselors.

as teachers of elementary classes, although there has some reversal of the trend in recent years. Women account for 84 per cent of all elementary teachers, with the male component at 16 per cent.

However, the ratio is almost exactly reversed when it comes to elementary school principals.

There are 212 elementary principals in the state's public schools. But only 35 or 37 per cent are women. The other 177, or 83 per cent of the elementary principals are men.

Barry Bull, planning and statistics consultant for the department of education, said women may be discouraged from pursuing a principal or administrative post because so few of the jobs go to women.

They then may turn to positions where women are more accepted, for instance, as counselors.

Bull said.

Women account for 42 per cent of guidance, service professionals, in Idaho public schools, with men numbering 58 per cent.

More traditional women's positions such as health and media service professionals have a high number of female employees.

Throughout the state, 25 per cent of both men and women are service and health service professionals are women.

The overall picture shows women form a major part of the school work force at 62 per cent of the instructional staff.

But despite their heavy representation in the profession, women have little part in the administrative duties. The report shows 13 percent of school and district administrators are women statewide.

BELLEVUE — The last remaining chartered city in Idaho has escaped bond indebtedness once again.

Bellevue has installed nearly a mile and a half water main to increase water pressure and capacity, and the town solved their water problems without going into debt.

Bellevue people are suspicious of strangers with great schemes and governmental employees carrying rules and regulations and as city foreman Bob Buchanan says, "We like to do it ourselves."

Running on a budget that doesn't exceed $40,000 yearly, the city has somehow found the revenue to complete a new 8,200-foot water main running east of town from Millidom Canyon to the city this summer.

"We've been saving for three years," City Mayor L.T. "Pete" Johnson says. "It's been a very frugal little town."

Johnson says the city has eliminated quite a few services to make the water, austere program work. Bellevue has shied away from bond issues for most of its years of existence.

"People may have passed a bond for the system, I don't know," Johnson says. "But why bond when you don't have to?"

For three years Johnson says the city has saved what it could to build the pipeline.

"Two good reasons made it necessary to build the line. Residents in the northeast corner of town had no water pressure during the summer months.

Secondly, the city water supply has been found to contain coliform bacteria, on occasion, cause by old wooden mains that broke allowing water to drain into the water supply.

Early this year the city found a costly fix, lay out the 170-inch line from the settling pond will allow the full 170-inch capacity from the springs to be sent into town. Currently, only one eight-inch steel pipe sends about 10 inches into town and has not provided enough pressure for each resident.

City foreman Buchanan says Bellevue has had to increase three times the number of homes to the pipeline as it had to ten years ago. There have been 20 new hookups since April this year.

The new line from the settling tank is to be activated soon, Buchanan says the line will be flushed for the first time.

Plans in the future include an eight-inch main line from South Street to the north end of town, then toward the city center along Birch Street. Eventually the entire town will be circled with new pipelines.

Bellevue City Council members are proud of the new line. Johnson says the city may even be able to drop the mill levy next year since the water problem has been solved.

Petroleum firm has new facility

TWIN FALLS — Leonard Petroleum Equipment has opened in a new building at 1859 Highland E.

Co-owner and manager, Gary Wignall, says the business opened in its new site two weeks ago although he has been operating from his home since July 1. Wignall owns the business along with partners, Robert Leonard and his son, Craig. Leonard has owned and managed a business of the same name in Idaho Falls for the past 16 years.

Wignall says his business offers a "complete line of petroleum handling equipment and accessory parts."

Construction under way on Rupert bank building

RUPTER — Excavations for the new First Security Bank of Idaho building in Rupert continue.

The new structure will be at Sixth and E. streets. It will replace the present bank office at 622 Fremont Ave., which has served the area since 1961.

The exterior will be of vertical cedar siding with windows of double insulated bronze glass. It will have expanded parking facilities and additional drive-in window services, said Dwinnell Alfred, manager of the Rupert Office.

Entrances will be on the west from E Street and on the east off of Sixth Street.

The bank building will have six thousand square feet of floor space divided between a main floor and a mezzanine.

Six teller stations and the officer platform will be on the main floor. The mezzanine will have a conference room, employee lounge and the bookkeeping department.

The interior will have wood trim walls and acoustical tile ceiling as well as carpeting in all areas except the lobby. Lighting will be fluorescent and the building will be air-conditioned.

Total valuation is $250,000, plus furniture, fixtures and property. It was designed by Sundberg & Associates, Idaho Falls. General contractor is Ellsworth Construction Company of Blackfoot.

The bank is expected to be completed by June.

Ter E. Hills, senior vice president and supervisor of the bank's eastern division, said: "The need for larger facilities reflects the growth in loan deposit and other banking services provided by First Security."

Boise defense scores 3 times in ripping TF 43-14

"I don't understand how we did so rotten," That statement by senior halfback Mike Allison as he watched the final seconds of a 43-14 victory at the hands of the Boise Braves about summed up things at Brin stadium Friday night.

Twin Falls was never in the contest. But Boise's defense sure was. It returned two fumble option laterals for touchdowns and turned a blocked punt into another. Most of that came early as for the third time in three, "They games the Bruins earned themselves out of contention by halftime."

Allison provided about the only bright spots as he picked up 102 yards—rushing his season total of 705 yards—and both touchdowns.

If Allison was dejected,

Coach Denny Almquist was crushed. "I'm at my wit's end," he said afterward. "We think we're prepared, coming off a good game and then can't get going when the game starts."

"But that's Ray Dilillo is a heckuva back—and Curt Jackson is a great receiver. They're a fine ball team but we're good too. Maybe we shouldn't have won the game but we shouldn't have been beaten like that."

The game was three plays old when Dilillo impressed on the disappointing Bruins that he was the SIC's leading rusher. He romped for 29 yards on third and three and two consecutive passes from Jeff Mott to Curt Jackson added to more and the touchdown.

Two Falls replied with a third first-down drive to the Boise 26 before fumbling out and the Braves bounced back with five first downs to the Twin Falls 11 before fumbling it away at the six. But four plays later, Craig Kirtland blocked an attempted punt out of the end zone, chased it to the far corner and fumbled for the touchdown.

The Bruins came back with two first down to the Boise 44 before a fumble hit and Carl Spalte scooped it up and sauted 46 yards to score. The slide continued rapidly as three plays after the kickoff Mark Hines' interception returned possession to Boise at the 43 Dilillo then made a pretty run, bolting through three Bruin tacklers, to score standing up from the 37.

The rout was completed two plays into the second half when an option pitch went behind the runner and Kirtland picked it up on the second bounce to score from 24 yards away.

The team trailed three points before Boise exploded again. This time, Mott turned to Jackson who was 22 yards alone after the Bruins defensive player had fallen down. Jackson had no problems completing a 62-yard pass play.

Allison's touchdown capped a drive off the next kickoff, Twin Falls' picking up 67 yards in six plays. Allison ran nine yards up the middle to score standing.

Bobby Latham recovered the onside kick and Twin Falls scored again in four plays—plus the help of a major penalty—with Allison taking a pitchout for the final six yards.

Osborne's pass to Craig Nielsen got a two-point conversion after the first score.

Blocked punt nets Boise TD

CHARGING Craig Kirtland of Boise (28) blocks a punt of Twin Falls' Jeff Osborne's toe Friday night in SIC action. The ball, just off Kirtland's right hand, rebounded into the end zone where the Boisean fell on it, for a touch down, part of the Braves' 43-14 victory.

Lenker-led Bliss trips New Meadows

HAGERMAN — Senior Jay Lenker scored five touchdowns in leading the Bliss Beers past New Meadows Friday night.

Lenker scored on a wide assortment of plays in this added game to tourney schedule.

He opened scoring in the second period by getting the last 12 yards on a drive and just before the half went in from the three for another. Rod Hess jogged both two-point conversions home.

Balback's 45-yard scamper trimmed the deficit to 16-6 in the third period before Lenker scored again. This time he recovered Hess' fumble in the end zone. Lenker also got the two-pointer.

In the fourth period he threw to Kelly Schneider for 15 yards and then hit Larry Hollowell to raise the score to 32-6. With about five minutes left, Lenker wound up the Bliss scoring highlight with a 55-yard punt return. Steve Goolsby converted.

Balback added New Meadows' final six points on a 21-yard dash two minutes from game's end.

Buhl thumps Burley 41-14 to cap undefeated season

BUHL — The undefeated Buhl Indians fought off fumbles and Burley's sticky defense Friday night to post a 41-14 victory.

Buhl thus completed a 10-0 record, took both the South Central Idaho and Cross State League championships and now faces undefeated Valley Marsh in the A-2 playoffs at Twin Falls' Brule Stadium at 3 p.m. Saturday.

For a long while Buhl's undefeated boast was pressured by the underdog Bobcats. Twice Burley turned fumbles into touchdowns and led 14-13 going into the final half of the third quarter. But once Buhl got untracked, Keith Metzner and Chris Bell quickly pushed the Indians off reach.

The first fumble hit the Burley 42-yard line and it took only seconds for the Bobcats to capitalize: Brown hit Kay Dalton with a 52-yard bomb, the play carrying to the Buhl four-yard line. Three plays later Jared Williams dived in from the one and the point-after kick was good.

Buhl took the ensuing kickoff, worked for one first down and then sprung Bell loose on a 47-yard sprint to beat the Bobcats 12-11. Metzner hit for seven, Gary Schmeckpeper for five and then Metzner went into the end zone. Scott Waldon's boot made it 14-13 with 3:44 left in the first period.

In the second period Metzner scooped up a fumble and ran it back to the Buhl 10-yard line. Brown punched that one in from the one and then hit Dalton with the two-point conversion.

Immediately Buhl replied with a scoring drive, capped by Metzner's four-yard run but the extra point play failed.

Minutes later Gormican's interception gave Burley a great scoring chance but the Bobcats fumbled it away inside the five yard line.

It stayed like that until 6:15 remained in the third quarter and Metzner scored again. The springboard for that was Brad Hellwig's interception at the Burley 40. The extra point failed, leaving it 19-14.

Burley's upset hopes died on the next series. Two plays after the kickoff Jared Williams shook away on a 65-yard run to the Buhl 15. But Burley fumbled that away on the next play and from then on it was all Buhl.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Schmeckpeper went in from the two, then passed to Chuck Stoddard for the two-pointer. Burley fumbled the ball away at 6:31 just three plays after the kickoff and Metzner capitalized on that by catching a third-down pass and taking it to the Burley 10. He finished it up with a six-yard burst.

Buhl's fourth-quarter explosion ended four minutes from the end of the game when Schmeckpeper scored from two yards away and kept for the two-pointer.

Buhl wound up the night with 270 yards while Metzner added 153.

Capital belts Minico 42-8

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Nick Armstrong raced for an 89-yard touchdown on the first play Friday to trigger a devastating 42-8 Capital victory over Minico.

Using a pulverizing ground game that rolled up 225 yards and three touchdowns in the opening quarter, the Capital wishbone offense marched down the field almost at will. The only time it lost the ball in the opening stanza was when it made only nine yards on a fourth-and-10 situation.

On its second possession, Capital used seven rushes for 47 yards after a short Minico punt. Armstrong capped the drive by going over the right side again for eight yards and the score.

Capital marched 74 yards and overcame 20 yards in penalties for its third touchdown. Kevin Walgamott went over right guard for five yards and the TD on the 10th rushing play of the drive with 2:25 seconds on the clock.

Mal Howarth kicked all three extra points.

Capital began to vary its attack by taking to the air in the second quarter and failed to move the ball much most of the period. Minico penetrated to the Capital 17 before the Capital defense stopped the Spartans on a fourth down play.

Then Capital took hold again, moving 22 yards in five plays. Zane Sterling backed off after a clipping penalty and fired to Lance LaShelle for a 69-yard touchdown.

Only a minute later, with 32 seconds left in the half, Sterling found the same combination for a 39-yard touchdown. Howarth had missed his fourth attempt, but Brent Lind went over left tackle for two points and a 33-0 halftime score.

Capital had chalked up 422 yards during the first half of their air-by in the second period. Lind, second-leading rusher in the SIC, had not scored. He averaged 7.7 yards per carry, compared to a season average of nine.

Armstrong got 133 yards in 10 totes. John DeVinespre, the Capital inside-man, continued to carry the ball in the second half and ended with 18 yards in 13 plays.

A fumble on the quarterback exchange gave Capital the ball on the third play of the second half at the Spartan 21. Four plays later, DeVinespre went over from the seven and Howarth made it 14-0.

That ended the Capital scoring, although starters continued to play through the third period and saw some action in the fourth.

Throwing on 50 per cent of its plays and completing only 40 per cent, Minico never moved until the final period. Then, following a 12-yard penalty that put the ball on the Capital 49, relief quarterback Brent Reddekopp hit Bob Harding with a pass and Harding scouted into the end zone.

Reddekopp kept on the conversion and went wide for the two points.

Over the game, Capital netted 367 yards, 416 on the ground, but suffered 140 yards in penalties. Minico had 269 yards, 172 in the air.

Gooding rolls past Wendell by 45-14

GOODING — The Gooding Senators rang down the curtain on a 6-4 year Thursday night by dropping the Wendell Trojans 45-14.

Jim Butter, shifted to running back for this game, scored the first two touchdowns on runs of six and eight yards. Clark Muscat booted both points after.

Rich Sims added a two-point safety when he blocked a punt through the end zone.

In the second period Jude Robinson took over scoring jaunts of 24 and four yards. Muscat kicked after the first one and Tony Echelita threw to both extra points.

Butler for a two-pointer after the second that made it 31-0 at halftime.

Wendell collected both their touchdowns on passes of five and 45 yards to Randy Harbinson but couldn't convert either.

Jim Mauro contacted at Keystone Race Track here, declined further comment.

A Keystone spokesman indicated DiMauro wanted to protect his investment in the horse which earned $556,225 during his two-year career and is expected to be noted "Horse of the Year."

The spokesman said Wajima would "not" run in the prestigious Washington, D.C., International Saturday.

The horse currently is at the Belmont Race Track.

The Keystone spokesman said the horse has been purchased by East-West Stable, a Japanese syndicate and would stand at stud at the Spendthrift Farms.

Wajima started 12 times and posted seven firsts and four seconds for earnings of $537,838. As a two-year-old, Wajima started four times with two firsts and one second, earning $40,387.

This last victory came in the Marlboro Cup. It was his fifth successive win.

Huskies earn bowl look, beat UCLA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robin Earl smashed his way for 169 yards on 27 carries and James Anderson scored two touchdowns Saturday as 18-point underdog Washington thrashed itself into the Rose Bowl picture with a 17-13 Pacific-8 over UCLA's Bruins.

Earl, a 6-1, 254-pound junior having his greatest day for the Huskies, was just too big and too strong for the Bruins to handle. Anderson scored on a three-yard pass from Chris Roland and carried on a four-yard run for Washington.

The Huskies, humbled by Alabama 52-6 only three weeks ago, improved their Pac-8 record in 3-1, while the Bruins suffered their first defeat in four conference games.

Washington, now 4-4 overall, took the second half kickoff and drove 78 yards in 12 plays to go ahead 14-7 at 1:35 of the third quarter. The drive included passes of 14 and 11 yards from Roland to Scott Phillips. Anderson culminated the drive by going four yards over tight tackle for the score that put the Huskies ahead to stay.

UCLA came right back to score on the next series as John Sclera rolled 32 yards into the Huskies' end zone.

However, Bruin reserve quarterback Jeff

Dankworth, the holder on the extra-point attempt, attempted to roll out to his left and was nailed by Washington defender Mike Baldassari. Sclera kicked a 31-yard field goal at 10:53 of the final quarter for the Huskies.

The shocker, before a crowd of 29,158 at the Coliseum, coupled with California's stunning upset over No.-4-rated University of Southern California, left the Pac-8 Rose Bowl race in a jumble. Cal, now 6-2, atop the conference standings at 4-1 followed by Washington, UCLA, USC and Stanford, all at 3-1.

UCLA halted Washington on its own three-inch line late in the opening quarter when Earl failed to make any gain on a fourth down play. The Bruins then took the ball 99 yards for the first score of the game, a one-yard dive at 3:27 of the second period.

The Huskies came right back by going 84 yards with Roland passing three yards to Anderson for a touchdown at 7:15 of the second quarter. The Washington march included a bruising 56-yard run by Earl to the UCLA seven.

There were six turnovers in the game, five of them in the second period, and the Bruins made four of them. In addition, UCLA was penalized 11 times for 104 yards.

Lynn says award comes too late

BOSTON (UPI) — Outfielder Fred Lynn, the American League Rookie of the Year, Saturday said the Most Valuable Player award is announced too late in the fall.

Lynn, the leading candidate for the MVP honor, said: "Right now it's the furthest thing from my mind. The regular season already has been over for a month and they [the Baseball Writers Association of America] are waiting until Nov. 26 to announce the award. They should do it right after the season ends."

The Boston Red Sox star, who batted .331 with 21 homers and knocked in 105 runs, made the comment before appearing with fellow rookie Jim Rice at the International Auto Show.

Lynn said it was unfortunate the award will be announced at a time he and his wife will be traveling home to California. "I won't be anywhere that the press can talk to me when it is announced. We should be driving across Colorado around that time."

He then was asked if he would give his permission to the award in advance so the media and the fans could hear his feelings on being honored. "No, I'm not going to do that," he answered. "I'm going to make you wait just like the [writers' association] are making me wait."

"Who knows, maybe John Mayberry [of Kansas City] will win it."

The 1,000-or-so fans who lined up for the first histogram session didn't agree with that assessment. They kept Lynn and Rice busy for more than a half hour before show officials stopped the flow to allow the two stars to rest.

Tennessee rips Colorado State

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Quarterback Randy Wallace hit John Yarbrough with scoring passes of 33 and 29 yards Saturday and ran for one touchdown himself in guiding Tennessee to a 28-7 win over Colorado State.

Wallace hit Yarbrough with the 33-yard scoring toss with 11:08 left in the first quarter, then threw a 29-yard touchdown pass with 4:01 left in the second quarter.

With 14:53 to go in the third quarter, free safety Eddie Powers intercepted a pass thrown by the Rams' Mark Driscoll and 2 seconds later Wallace had Tennessee's third touchdown on a 43-yard run on an option play.

Tailback Mike Gayles scored the final touchdown on a six-yard run with 1:29 left in the game.

Colorado State's only touchdown came on a five-yard pass from Driscoll to tight end Fred Bibb late in the third quarter.

Tennessee's first touchdown came after essentially an 80-yard drive, aided by an exchange of fumbles and muffed. Fullback Terry Moore fumbled at the Colorado State 45 and Ram linebacker Kevin McLain recovered.

But on the first carry by the Rams, tailback Ron Harris fumbled to Tennessee cornerback Russ Rabenstein at the Rams' 42.

Two plays later, Wallace threw 33 yards to Bibb for the score.

Tennessee's option drive covered 84 yards in four plays. The big gainer was a 31-yard option run by Wallace to which officials added 15 yards for a late tackle out of bounds.

Ram kicker Clark Kemble missed two field goal tries in the first half, from 31 and 58 yards. Tennessee's Jim Gaylor missed field goal attempts from 28 and 37 yards.

Ohio St. struggles by Indiana

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Top-rated Ohio State, pased by the running of Archie Griffin and Pete Johnson, was bent but not broken by underdog Indiana Saturday and held on for a 24-16 Big Ten victory over the Hoosiers.

The Buckeyes, a six-touchdown favorite, took a 17-0 lead at halftime but needed a one-yard touchdown run by Johnson with 6:22 left in the game to put away its eighth victory without a loss.

Indiana, which came into the game last in the Big Ten in both offense and defense, outplayed the nation's top-rated team much of the second half, driving 50 and 90 yards for third-period touchdowns to narrow the score to 17-14 before Johnson's score — his 10th of the year.

Both Indiana touchowns were scored by sophomore fullback Rick Enis, who had 14 yards in 29 carries. His first touchdown was the first scored against the Buckeyes this year in conference play.

Griffin and Johnson each totaled 150 yards. Griffin's performance was the 25th straight time he has carried for more than 100 yards in a regular-season game.

Ohio State's first score came on a 43-yard field goal by Tom Kish. Quarterback backup Craig Cassidy recovered an onside kick on the OSU 45.

The Buckeyes' first touchdown — a one-yard pass from Cornelius Greene to freshman tight end Jimmy Moore — capped an 80-yard drive in 18 plays.

Indiana, gambling on a key fourth-and-ten pass completion from Trent Smuck to Jim McVay for 16 yards, drove to the OSU 10. But Frank Stavoli's 35-yard field goal was wide to the right.

Ohio State then drove 80 yards in 13 plays with Greene going the final four yards with 1:32 left in the half.

Indiana went 50 yards in 12 plays the first time it had the ball in the third quarter, with Enis going over from the four. Enis added his touchdown for the day — capping a 90-yard drive in a dozen plays, punctuated over from the four to pull IU to 17-14.

Ohio State drove 33 yards

after intercepting a Terry Jones pass, with Johnson leaping the Indiana defense from the one-yard line.

Stanford beats Oregon State to keep Rose Bowl hope alive

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — The Stanford defense scored one touchdown, set up another and a field goal while blocking two punts and recovering a fumble — Saturday to take a 6-0 Pacific-8 Conference "home" from Oregon State 28-22.

The win gave the Cards a 3-1 conference record and hopes still alive for a shot at the Rose Bowl. Overall Stanford is 4-3 and Oregon State is 0-4 for the long losing streak in its football history.

Stanford exploded for 22 points in 6½ minutes late in the second quarter, then stopped two Beaver drives at the 21 and 33. OSU got back to the ball game on touchbacks in the third and fourth periods.

Placekicker Mike Langford kicked field goals of 30 and 50 yards, the second coming after Mike Wittensom blocked Werrell Smith's punt, from the first period Stanford lead. But OSU tailback Rich Dodge, who ran for 102 yards in 24 carries during the game, scored on the seven and OSU on Keith Nelson's punt after led 7-6 with eight minutes to play in the second quarter.

Then the roof fell in on the Beavers. Ray Cardinals blocked a Smith punt and linebacker Jeff Barton scooped the ball up at the Beaver 10 and scored with Langford's kick making it 13-7.

Late Penn St. field goal nips Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Chris Bahr's 40-yard field goal halfway through the final period Saturday gave ninth-ranked Penn State a 15-13 victory over 15th-ranked Maryland.

Maryland placekicker Mike Soehko missed a chance to win the game when his attempt from 42 yards with 15 seconds left fell wide to the right. The returner was the Nittany Lions' Jim in a row over Maryland.

Penn State scored three times in the first nine minutes but failed again until Bahr's kick with 7:24 remaining in the game.

Bahr, who missed two field goals in the second and third quarters and was only one for four all season from 40-to-49 yards, made the crucial kick after the 15th ranked Terps held the Nittany Lions for nine straight series of downs.

Sohko had put Maryland ahead 13-12 on a 31-yard field goal midway in the third quarter after defensive back Jim Burchette stole the ball from Penn State's Larry Subey, who was 21 yards into a possible 88-yard touchdown run.

Burchette caught up with Subey at the Maryland 35, hit him and stole the ball.

Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne elected to go for three points with a field goal and the 14 and the score 12-10 in favor of Penn State. The same decision by Penn State Coach Jim Paterno worked in the final period when his team faced fourth and one at the 21.

Scouts from five post season bowl games attended the contest along with almost 59,000 others, the largest crowd ever to witness a sports event in the Washington area.

Maryland fumbled on its first two possessions and allowed Bahr, the nation's top field goal kicker, to hit three-pointers from 37 and 41 yards.

After Penn State marched 69 yards for a touchdown, with Woody Petich going the last 36 yards on a pitch from John Andress, the game appeared out of hand for Maryland. Penn State missed a two-point conversion, taking a 2-0 lead after only nine minutes of play.

The Terps came back after a 13-yard Soehko punt to the Penn State seven. The Terps moved from the Penn State 34 but had to settle for a 26-yard Soehko field goal to open the second quarter.

The teams traded punts before Maryland drove 63 yards for a touchdown capped by Steve Atkins' five yard run, making it 12-10.

With less than a minute left in the first half, Bahr missed a 37-yard field goal and another from 38 yards early in the fourth quarter.

CSI sags to fifth in regional

SALEM, Ore. — "It was the kind of day that makes me wonder why I ever left the farm," said CSI cross country coach Jim Blaiddell after watching his Eagles collapse to fifth place in regionals Saturday.

Lane Community college romped to its seventh straight title with 39 points while Clackamas had 35, North Idaho 34, Central Oregon 34, CSI 112, Southwest Oregon 164, Bicks 181, Blue Mountain 234, Judson Baptist 247 and Linn-Benton 270.

Gary Schroeder of Central Oregon, third last year, won the five-mile test in 26:24.

But Coach Blaiddell couldn't reconcile CSI's finish at fifth place with North Idaho, team CSI had beaten soundly twice, in third. The result means CSI's season is over its only the top two qualify for nationals.

"Actually (Steve) Kaufman and (John) Hunter ran well," said Coach Blaiddell. "Our third man, Manuel Montoya, didn't do badly. But after that we fell back hard."

Kaufman finished sixth at 26:34, Hunter eighth in 26:35, Montoya 24th in 27:46; Paul Bahson 3rd in 28:44; Robbie Smith 4th in 28:49 among the 77-man field. Half-miler Doug Hillman, taken as a sixth man after illness and injury sidelined Craig Pate and Mark Singleton, did well in the long distance at 50th in 30:36.

Touchdown by defense help Notre Dame drop Navy 31-10

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Defensive end Ross Browner and defensive tackle John Weston produced touchdowns Saturday to lead Notre Dame to a 31-10 triumph over Navy, the nation's No. 3 ranked defensive team.

Browner blocked a punt by the Middies' Steve Dykes and recovered the ball in the end zone for the first Notre Dame touchdown to give the Irish a lead they never lost.

Then Weston, a star throughout the game, picked off a pass by Phil Polrier of Navy and returned it 53 yards for Notre Dame's third touchdown.

Weston's chance to score was set up by a Navy misplay on the previous play.

Trying on fourth down to gain an inch for a first down on the Notre Dame 36 and trailing by only seven points, Navy's right end, Mike Grimes, jumped off side to make it fourth and six and Weston's interception came on a fake punt when Dykes threw the ball instead of kicking it.

The Irish defense clicked again when defensive back Tom Eastman intercepted another Polrier pass and returned 23 yards to the Navy 5 to set up a run the rest of the way

Navy made 215 yards, 149 on the ground.

Colorado stops 2-point play to slip past Iowa State 28-27

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Colorado stopped an Iowa State two-point conversion attempt with less than a minute to play Saturday and salvaged a 28-27 Big Eight victory.

Iowa State led 21-17 at the half and almost pulled off an upset when reserve quarterback Tom Mason scored on a four-yard keeper with 51 seconds left in the game.

However, fullback Jim Wingender, who gained 128 yards on the day, was stopped two yards short of the goal on the conversion attempt.

Mason's touchdown, capping an 80-yard drive, was set up by his 44-yard scoring pass to Dexter Green.

Green had gone ahead for the first time, 28-21, with 2:11 remaining on a two-yard plunge by Terry Kunz, who gained 107 yards in 23 carries.

Buddy Hardeman, Iowa

State's No. 1 quarterback, had the longest run of the day — a 71-yarder that gave Iowa State a 14-7 lead with 12:04 left in the second quarter. However, Hardeman left the game in the second half when stiffness developed in his left wrist, which was broken three weeks ago.

The Cyclones' Ray Hardee had a 100-yard kickoff return in the third quarter nullified by a holding penalty.

N.M. thumps UTEP

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — New Mexico scored 10 points in 12 seconds in the first quarter Saturday and quieted the crowd.

Quarterback Steve Myers passed for 222 yards to lead the Lobos to a 23-20 Western Athletic conference win over Texas El Paso.

Myer, the nation's second leading passer, became the most prolific thrower in Lobo history. His 13 completions for 222 yards gave him a career total of 2,797 yards, surpassing the old record of 2,715 by Terry Stone.

New Mexico, which has won three straight conference games, broke it open with their 10-point spurt late in the opening quarter. Kicker Bob Berg hit an 18-yard field goal and running back Thurman broke loose for a 14-yard scoring run after the Miners fumbled at their own 28. Berg's field goal, his 14th of the season, also gave him a share of the WAC career record of 27.

The record was set by Wyoming's Bob Jacobsen.

Other New Mexico scores came on a 39-yard end around scamper by freshman Keith Ellis and a 14-yard pass from Myer to freshman running back Mike Williams.

Purdue ends six-year jinx by beating Michigan State 20-10

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Scott Dierking and Mike Pruitt crashed for touchdowns and Steve Schmidt kicked two field goals Saturday, spurring Purdue to a 20-10 Big Ten victory over Michigan State.

The Boilermakers, winning their first game from the Spartans in the last six meetings, broke a 10-10 half-time stalemate with Schmidt's second field goal from 24 yards in the third period and added a touchdown on Pruitt's five-yard run in the fourth.

They held Michigan State scoreless in the second half.

It was only Purdue's second victory of the season against six defeats, while Michigan State fell to 4-4. In conference play, Purdue improved its record to 2-3 while MSU fell to 1-4.

Pruitt turned two costly

Florida cops 31-14 win over Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Jimmy Dutchie rushed for 120 yards and one touchdown and quarterback Jimmy Pasher threw two scoring passes Saturday to beat 10th-ranked Florida in a 31-14 Southeastern Conference victory over Auburn.

Dutchie scored the final touchdown of the game on a four-yard run off left tackle as he advanced his season rushing total to 1,055 yards. The win kept Florida tied with Alabama for the SEC lead, moving the Gators to a 7-1 overall and 4-0 conference record. Auburn dropped to 6-3-1.

Dutchie sparked Florida's first drive, picking up 45 yards as the Gators moved 70 yards on their ground in 13 plays. Terry Britton scored on a six-yard pitchout from Fisher.

Muncie leads California to 28-14 upset over Southern California

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Chuck Muncie ran for 143 yards and caught five passes for 52 more in a brilliant individual performance Saturday that not only upstaged the more publicized Ricky Bell, but also helped California to an upset 28-14 victory over fourth-ranked and previously unbeaten Southern California and into first place in the Pacific Eight Conference.

The victory snapped Southern Cal's unbeaten string at 18 and came one day after longtime Trojan Coach John McKay announced officially he was leaving at the end of the season to join the pro ranks.

Worse than that, it dropped Southern California, the heavy pre-season favorite, into a second place tie in the Pacific Eight Conference with UCLA, Stanford and Washington and left the Trojans in the position of having to win their remaining three games to stand a chance for the conference title and the Rose Bowl berth that goes with it.

For Muncie, it was the school's biggest victory since Mike White took over as head coach four years ago and started a rebuilding program.

It left the Golden Bears at 4-1 in the Pac 8, 5-3 overall and White almost speechless.

"This is without a doubt the finest victory I have ever been associated with in my career,"

White said when he recovered.

"I never had a finer victory. We went out and took it to them and we beat a great team."

McKay gave Muncie most of the credit for the victory.

"He's just an excellent runner and he does so many things well," said McKay. "We have no excuses and I don't think the coaching announcement was a distraction."

We simply didn't play as well as we are capable on our hand and Cal played excellent on the other."

Muncie didn't score any of California's touchdowns but he was a factor in all four. Joe Roth, who won the No. 1 quarterback job three games into the season, threw for two of the Golden Bears' touchdowns and ran for a third.

In all, Roth, a junior, completed 19 of 31 passes for 244 yards in his finest collegiate game.

Wesley Walker grabbed a 16-yard pass from Roth and George Freitas took a fourty-yarder for California's first two touchdowns. Roth ran for the third and Tom Newton ran 11 yards for the clincher.

Bel held to 12 yards in his poorest performance of the season, ran 12 yards for Southern Cal's first touchdown and quarterback Vince Evans went 29 yards for the second.

Evans' touchdown tied the score at 14-14 with 1:57 left in the third quarter but then the Bears rolled 87 yards in 12 plays with Roth going the final yard for a 21-14 lead early in the final period.

Oklahoma shellacks cross-state rivals

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Quarterback Steve Davis ran for two touchdowns Saturday and guided No. 2 ranked Oklahoma into position for two field goals, leading the Sooners to a 27-7 victory over cross-state rival Oklahoma State.

Tony DiTocco booted field goals of 36 and 36 yards and halfback Joe Washington rambled 26 yards for Oklahoma's only touchdown.

Oklahoma State scored on an 8-yard pass from Scott Burk to split end Gerald Bain.

Two of the Sooner touchdown drives and one of the field goals were set up by Cowby fumbles.

Mike Phillips recovered a fumble at the OSU 20 early in the third quarter. Three plays later Davis ran 10 yards for the score. Later in the same period, Anthony Bryant recovered a fumble made by Charlie Weatherbie in the return of quarterback's first play in the game. OU moved five yards in three plays and then DiTocco booted his 36-yard field goal.

Jerry Anderson recovered a fumble by running back Terry Miller late in the fourth quarter at the OSU 34. Two plays later Washington broke free for another touchdown drive.

Davis scored his first touchdown on a one-yard run at 11:24 in the first quarter to cap a 60-yard drive in five plays, which was highlighted by a 37-yard pass to Washington.

Deep into the opening period, a Sooner campaign, which featured an 18-yard scamper by fullback Horace Ivory, stalled. The tee was placed on the 46 and DiTocco kicked the ball 56 yards through the uprights.

The Cowboys scoring drive covered 71 yards in 10 plays and included three passes besides the soaring aerial to Bain. The Pokes had been unable to move the ball on the ground and began a passing game in the second quarter, when they got their initial first down of the game.

Three other OSU scoring threats ended when two passes intended for receivers in the end zone went incomplete and when the Sooners held the Cowboys on the one yard line.

Ivory was the leading rusher with 99 yards on 13 carries. Washington picked up 58 yards in 12 rushes and Davis added 42 yards in 18 runs.

Arizona Staters

crush Utah 40-14

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Eleventh-ranked Arizona State, powered by a Western Athletic Conference record nine interceptions from its defense, crushed Utah 40-14 Saturday in a WAC game.

Quarterbacks Dennis Sprout and Fred Mortensen each passed and ran for touchdowns. But it was the Sun Devils' defense which set up the scoring opportunities, picking off nine WAC passes and recovering a fumble.

Arizona State led only 14-7 at the intermission, but safety Mike Haynes started the second-half defensive onslaught, which gave the Sun Devils their eighth win of the year and 10th straight victory.

Haynes picked off a Pat Degan pass, one of eight the Utah quarterback tossed into the Arizona State defense and can it back 54 yards for a score early in the third quarter.

Haynes and Mike Martinez each intercepted Degan twice. Degan set a school record for interceptions, wiping out the previous mark of five.

Five other ASU defensive backs picked off one pass apiece — Degan's eight and one by backup quarterback Homer Warner — to break the WAC record of seven interceptors racked up by Arizona in 1968 against Texas-El Paso.

After Haynes' interception return, Sprout passed eight yards to Kirk Carter to give the Sun Devils a 26-7 third-quarter lead.

Mortensen threw a 67-yard bomb to Larry Mucker, and ran one yard in the fourth quarter to close out the Sun Devils' highest scoring performance of the year.

Dorsett-led Pitt routs Syracuse 38-0

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Tony Dorsett rushed for 187 yards, including a 75-yard touchdown run, and surpassed the 1,000-yard barrier for the first straight season Saturday to lead Pittsburgh to a 38-0 rout of Syracuse.

Pittsburgh's defense allowed only two deep penetrations into their territory in the game and intercepted two Syracuse passes. Pitt jumped out in the first quarter with a 10-yard scoring run by fullback Elliot Walker, capping a 5-yard drive.

A 45-yard punt return by Gordon Jones set up the second touchdown, an eight yard pass from quarterback Matt Cavanaugh to tight end Jim Corbett.

Dorsett took a pitchout from Cavanaugh, broke through the Syracuse line and outran the secondary in a 75-yard sprint that left the Panthers ahead 21-0 at the half.

O'Leary run sparks Huskers by Tigers

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — John O'Leary rambled 40 yards for a touchdown on a trick play off a punt situation just before halftime Saturday, sparking third-ranked and unbeaten Nebraska to a 30-7 victory over stubborn Missouri before a sellout crowd and a national television audience.

The game, a repeat in the Big Eight Conference, was played under overcast skies before 50,195 spectators. It turned on a play near the end of the first half that the Cornhuskers labeled "Bummersookit." It's the same play Stanford used to edge Michigan, 13-12, in the 1972 Rose Bowl.

The victory elevated Nebraska to an 8-0 record and brought 12th-ranked Missouri to a 5-3.

Nebraska's trick play came with 1:46 left in the first half after Missouri had pulled within 10-7. Facing fourth-and-five at the Missouri 49, Randy Leman dropped back to punt.

The snap, however, went to fullback Tony Davis, who pushed the football forward between O'Leary's legs where it was held while Davis and tailback Monte Anthony pivoted toward the right side.

When the pursuit turned toward Anthony and Davis, O'Leary plucked the ball from between his legs and covered the 40 yards around the left side untouched.

He was close to the goal line before anyone — either Missouri players or fans — realized he had the football.

Nebraska struck again near the end of the first quarter.

Missouri roared to life in the second quarter after Kenny Downing recovered a punt fumble by Kurt Stacey at the Nebraska 42. The Tigers advanced to a first down at the Cornhuskers' 10, then received a pass interference penalty at the goal line against Chuck Jones. From the one, Tony Gaffreath scored with 6:34 left in the half.

Rights of women Fairfield issue

Fairfield. Female Fairfield voters will have opportunity to vote for a woman's representative on the City Council in Tuesday's election.

Shirley Grimm
Shirley Grimm, 43, one of four persons seeking the two posts, says she is not running to represent her own ideas but to "have a woman's representative" on the council.

Mrs. Grimm, who operates the Soldier Mountain Ceramics and Gift Shop, said she was urged to run by other women for this purpose and her selection resulted "through process of elimination."

If elected, she said she will hold regular sessions for women to present their ideas and town problems proceeding each monthly council meeting.

She also said she will work toward establishment of a youth area for 4-H youths.

Mrs. Grimm's husband, Harold, is a native of the area, ran a ceramics shop at Forest Service buildings here a year ago before moving to the fire equipment.

Her opponents in the council race include Jim Kirtland, 40, Idaho Power Co. representative; Rex O'Neill, 50, U.S. Forest Service; and Albert Bricker, 83, retired carpenter and painter.

Jim Kirtland. Kirtland was raised at Hagerman and has been with the power firm 16 years. He was in Blackfoot 11 years where he was active in community and youth work.

"We're experiencing growing pains in Fairfield," he said. The candidate sees need for long range planning. He splits two subdivisions which eventually will mean 30 new houses already have been approved.

"Our water and sewer facilities are all right now," he said, "but we need to plan for future growth in our facilities."

Rex O'Neill

O'Neill has been with the forest service 14 years and lived in Fairfield the past 40 years. A native of Utah, he has served on the council previously and operated a garage here before joining the forest service.

He said, "We're outgrowing our pants" and feels expansion will be good for the community.

O'Neill said Fairfield has a "pretty good sewage system," but the water system must be updated. It was installed during World War II when it was impossible to get adequate pipe, he said.

Other needs the candidate sees are establishment of a city office, a place for law enforcement officers and better facilities for the fire equipment.

Albert Bricker

Bricker, a native of Rantoul, Kan., has lived in Fairfield about five years, coming here from Boise. He has worked for the Army Corps of Engineers and then was self-employed as a carpenter and painter.

He said he would like to see the town grow and doesn't believe Fairfield has any great problems, but sees the need for repair work on both the water and sewage system.

He said the water lines are deteriorating and need to be replaced. "This is a good place to live, anyway," Bricker said, "but if that were done it would make it better."

IRS 'bounties' nixed

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A measure to eliminate the paid informant program of the Internal Revenue Service was introduced in the House today by Idaho Congressman Steve Syms.

The bill repeals Section 7623 of the Internal Revenue Code and would remove the ability of the IRS to pay fees or "bounties" to citizen informants. Presently, the agency encourages people to provide them with the names of possible tax violators and other useful information.

Rewards of up to ten per cent of the total additional taxes and penalties collected are then paid out to the informants.

"Something is seriously wrong when the IRS can use our tax dollars to promote tax evasion," Syms says. "If there is one thing that American taxpayers do not need, it is a network of IRS spies on their backs—who are willing to turn in friends and neighbors for a price."

The Syms legislation will now be referred to the House Ways and Means Committee for possible action.

Gwin Brown, manager of the lunch counter, prepares for noon customers

It's the end of an era —

By LINDA LEE

TWIN FALLS -- Twin Falls will lose its last big five-and-dime store when Newberry's closes its doors Dec. 31.

"It's the end of an era," said one long-time employee.

Manager Wayne Thill says McCrory Industries Corp., which bought out Newberry stores across the country three years ago, has decided the Twin Falls store no longer draws adequate business.

Newberry's opened on Oct. 24, 1940, Joyce Stout, Twin Falls' long-time patron of the store, remembers when Newberry's and Woolworth's were the center of the Saturday afternoon social life of Twin Falls. Woolworth's closed five years ago.

"Newberry's was always crowded with farmers on Saturdays. They came in to shop, eat, get money from the counter, then sit down outside near the corner and chat," Joyce remembers. "Every afternoon kids from O'Leary Junior High would come over for a coke and fries, or maybe back in those days it was soda."

Elnora Jennings, remember her. She started working for Newberry's 25 years ago and will be there when the wooden doors close forever.

Back then, Elnora was the floor lady. Over the years, she has worked with 13 managers. She supervised the counter girls who stood inside each long counter.

One of her counter girls was Bonnie Fraser of Buhi who ran the cosmetics section for a short while 20 years ago. Bonnie returned to the store three weeks ago to work in the yardage department.

"In those days, each counter girl had her own cash register, did her own ordering and did her own counter design,"

Bonnie says. "We also sold a different kind of product then."

The organization of Newberry's changed about 15 years ago, and since then Elnora has handled all the ordering, trimmed all the windows and done office work.

In the early '60s all the counters were pushed together. This left a space for a counter girl, except between the old glass candy counters which closed about three years ago.

Drug store and dime store lunch counters used to be very popular because a good lunch could be had for little money. Newberry's was no exception, but as inflation greased the cheap lunch disappeared.

"We used to have a full counter for lunch," Newberry employee Gwin Brown says. "we could count on regular customers. But, a few years ago people began bringing their lunches in paper bags."

Gwin does not like space to Newberry's with her English accent and mild manners. She has worked the lunch counter seven years and recently took over management of the counter when Edna Rains who ran it for ten years left two months ago.

"Customers who feel uncomfortable here will be sorry to see it," she says.

U.N. Terry and his son Glen who run the Terry Insurance Agency upstairs from Newberry's in the Twin Falls Bank and Trust building have been having coffee regularly at the lunch counter for many years.

"We have been having our morning coffee there for 15 or 20 years," U.N. guessed. "and lunch for 5 years." He said they would miss Newberry's because "it is so handy."

The "We are at Newberry's for coffee" sign won't appear on the Terry door much longer.

Store manager, Thill says, this is the 93rd year Newberry stores have been in business. He also said that there will only be three stores left in Idaho when this one is closed. They are in Lewiston, Idaho Falls and Pocatello.

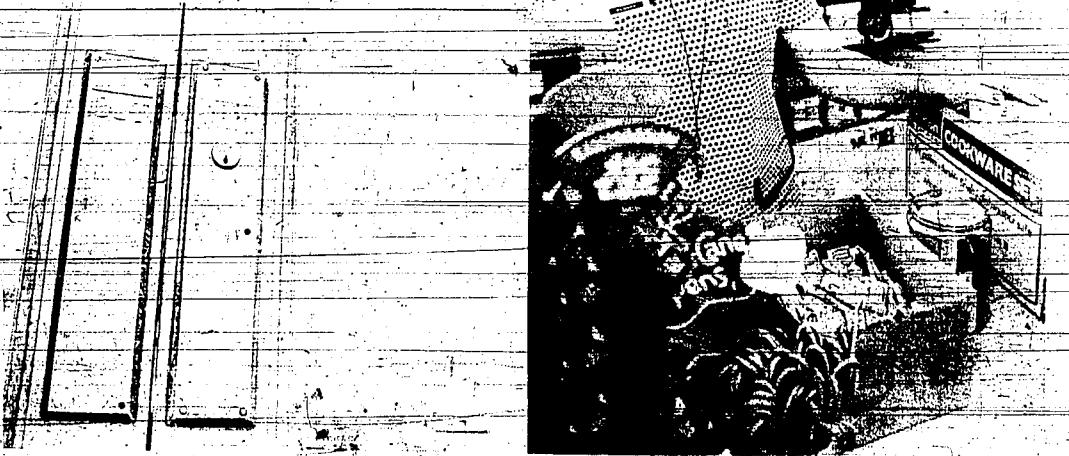

Thill said the McCrory corporation believes that the cost of renovating these old stores to bring them up to modern marketing standards and attract customers is prohibitive. Therefore, they are closing these stores which are in out of the way places and not keeping their past devoted business.

The Newberry store was bought by the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, according to bank president Curtis Eaton. He said that the building will be used by the bank for expansion some time in the future. In the meantime, the bank hopes to lease the space on a short lime basis to some other party.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South knew that his four-spade call was a slight over-bid. When he saw dummy, the overbid became really apparent. There were two sure-and-losers, and probably club later and adverse ace-of-trumps as the clincher against him.

Still, while there's life there's hope. South gave no indication that he had any problems at all. He won the heart in his own hand and led a small spade.

West thought a while, hopped up with his ace and led the suit back. South won in dummy, cashed dummy's king of hearts, and led the 10 of clubs. South led the 10 of that suit.

Now it was South's time to think, but he solved his problem by playing dummy's jack of clubs to make his impossible game.

"Ask the Jacobs,"

A New York reader wants to know if we ever have occasion to open a two-card diamond suit, when playing five-card meek.

We suppose that the hand he is thinking of is something like:

▲ K J 3 ♦ K 9 6 5 ♦ A K ♣ A 3 2. With 14 high-card points we are going to open the bidding. We do so with a rather unhappy club bid, but would not quarrel with an unhappy spade of heart but we would NOT open one diamond.

TF library adds new books

TWIN FALLS — Mini-reviews for some of the books recently received at the Twin Falls Public Library have been released by library officials.

"Killer Angels" by Michael Shaara.

"It Is July, 1863. All that month there is heat and what rain. The Army of Northern Virginia is invading the North. General Robert E. Lee has made this daring and massive movement. His strong right-hand man is Gen. James Longstreet, who loves Lee, but has stubbornly argued against this move into the North. Opposing these two is Gen. George Meade. The two congenuee. The Welsh no longer seem to have any pride in their history or traditions. Few of them speak their own language and fewer still feel any sense of loss.

How "July" lawlessness and violence in whatever cause! He tries to hold himself apart from them, making the farm he built for his wife a place of calm and beauty. But the brutal forces of the time reach out to touch him even there, and he must come to terms with them before finding the promise of peace waits.

"Washington, the Indispensable Man" by James Thomas Fletcher.

Brief and dramatic, yet detailed enough to convey facets of George Washington's character and career; this is a major biography.

"To Find America Again," the author writes, "we may not return to our national beginnings with the blinded eyes of idolatry and chauvinism." Washington emerges from these pages as one of history's greatest men, who nonetheless, made great mistakes, whose passions sometimes got the better of his self-control, and whose achievements in war and peace were hard won and always sustained.

"Let's determine without prejudice exactly how men behave. If we do this, we shall, so I am profoundly convinced, find in the dark ages where we often stand, inspiration."

This is one of the most moving novels about war to be published in our time. Unforgettable portraits of Americans whose deeds and characters recall to us what they fought to preserve and what is still of transcendent value to Americans.

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 84 and my wife is 77. We've been married for six years. It's the second marriage for both of us. First, let me tell you we're both in excellent health. My problem is she's 100% off. She makes me feel like a dirty old man every time I approach her for sex. She keeps saying, "We're old for that stuff. You're a sex maniac and ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Abby, my first wife and I were married for over 40 years, and we enjoyed a fulfilling, active sexual relationship right up until the time she died. She was in her 70s.

At what age are people supposed to quit having sexual relations?

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: There is no reason why normal, healthy people should not be sexually active as long as they live.

MR. AND MRS. RUSSELL CASTER exchange promises

TWIN FALLS: Linda Jean Skelton and Russell Caster were married in an 8 o'clock ceremony Oct. 18 at the First Assembly of God Church in Twin Falls.

Rev. Harold Hake of the Guiding Christian Church conducted the double-ring candlelight ceremony. A pair of seven-tiered candelabras draped with greenery held white candles which were lit by Susan Skelton, sister of the bride, and Shawna Huber.

"Vocal music" was provided by Murray and Kathy Burkman, uncle and aunt of the bride. The organist was Mrs. James Hicks.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Brassfield - Kimberly, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John L. Caster, Gooding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown featuring a high stand-up collar with lace and multi-tiered sleeves. The skirt was finished with a wide A-line flounce and double row of buttons on the bottom.

The veil was cathedral length and held in place by a lace-trim cap. She carried a cascading bouquet of pink miniature rosebuds and gypsophila backed with french illusion lace with streamers of pink satin. She carried her bouquet on her arm - lace-covered Bible.

Cheryl Maher was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Trudy Wirth and Penny Caster, sister in law of the bridegroom. Tracy Darling was flower girl.

Ronnie Bateman was best man and ushers were Gene Larsen and David Skelton, brother of the bride. Ronny Darling was ring bearer.

The church was decorated with two baskets of pink gypsophila and gypsophila with blue ribbon bows. The pews were decorated with bows of pink and blue ribbon.

The reception followed the ceremony. The reception hall was decorated in the Women's Missions Group of the First Assembly of God Church. The three-tier cake was held on a tiered pedestal under cascading ribbons of blue water. Each tier was decorated with cascading blue roses. Two heart cakes with the names of the bride and bridegroom were connected to the wedding cake by blue ribbon streamers.

Louise Bowlin, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Darlene Branson, Nellie Maricle, Linda Murray and Mrs. James Hicks served.

Caring for gifts were Ronda and Robert Brumley, Brenda Phillips and Elmer Hamm.

Following a short honeymoon in Boise, the couple will be at home in Kimberly.

The bridegroom is employed by Idaho Power Co. and the bride is employed by Amalgamated Sugar Co.

Each season brings special chores

United Press International

Each season brings its special chores for the homeowner.

As fall turns to winter, the home handyman in most sections of the country busies himself with outdoor cleanup and indoor preparations to insure a snug, warm house.

Leaves are cleaned from gutters, the roof checked for leaks, for conditions that might result in a buildup of ice or snow. Storm windows and doors are installed, weatherstripping checked. The heating system is serviced. The tools of winter — snowblowers, shovels — are readied.

There's something that should be added to most lists: a safety check.

Pinkerton's, a leading security firm, warns that winter brings special fire hazards, and as many as 5,000 deaths as a result of ignorance or disregard of basic fire prevention measures.

Fire safety, of course, begins with a carefully thought-out plan for escape in the event of fire, and regular drills to insure that each family member knows exactly what to do and how to leave the house safely.

Pinkerton's fire prevention training program for its guard force offers a number of useful tips for its guard force.

Special precautions are necessary when using fireplaces or portable heaters, the firm notes.

FIREPLACES:

Be sure to use a screen and fireplace tools.

Make certain the fireplace has been well banked with ashes, and screened, to contain dying embers before you go to bed or leave the house.

Have the chimney checked to be sure it is clean and unobstructed before the first fire of the season.

Follow instructions if using synthetic logs. Use well-seasoned wood if possible, and learn how to lay a fire properly. Do not burn trash in a fireplace.

If you must use starter fluid, use it sparingly and carefully and keep it far from the fire when not in use.

Do not leave young children or animals unsupervised in a room with a fire.

PORTABLE HEATERS:

Turn heater off when not in use.

Keep heater away from curtains and furniture.

Be sure heater is in good working order and equipped with automatic shutdown mechanisms in case it tips over.

Check for overloaded circuits, which may cause noticeable dimming of nearby lights or excessive heat in cord.

your health

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Could you give me some information about spasmodic torticollis? I can't seem to find any information about this condition although I have had it for eight years... Mrs. E.S.

The cause of torticollis (wry-neck) is not clear. It is a muscular deformity of the neck vertebrae which sometimes causes a tilting of the head. Fibromyositis (inflammation of fibro-muscular tissue) can be a cause, but this should not have last-drawn features.

Heat and massage, along with anti-inflammatory drugs such as aspirin, have been used successfully, especially in early stages. In very early cases simple manipulation often cures the problem.

The exact name of your condition is "spasmodic" torticollis. This is a rather rare adult form of the problem, and it doesn't respond as well to treatment as does the more common variety. Psychological factors may be present.

The few cases I have seen have been in women who did exhibit emotional upset. In stubborn cases surgery may be the only solution. An X-ray of the neck spine should be undertaken to determine arthritic changes there. You should consult an orthopedic specialist for a full evaluation.

Spastic torticollis

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Would you please tell me why you can pull some hairs from your face with tweezers and it's okay, but at other times it gets infected? Are there some hairs you should not pull? A.T.K.

No matter how well you wash, there are usually some germs left in the "skin of the face." Normally, they are harmless.

However, pulling a hair leaves the follicle or pore open, and exposed to infection.

It is best to snip hairs with scissors around the nose, face or brows.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am bothered with constant dizziness. Doctors tell me it have narrowing of an artery leading to the ear. Is there any hope for relief? Will the condition be cleared up ever? Please send me your booklet, "Dizzy Spells," for which I'm enclosing the required 25 cents and a lung stamp, self-addressed envelope - Rev. A.C.

It is quite possible that faulty circulation to the brain is causing your dizziness. If so, the obstruction, which would most likely be in the carotid artery to the brain, can be determined by arteriogram. In such a case, surgery to correct the obstruction would bring relief.

However, persistent dizziness rather suggests a defect in the balance mechanism of your ear. This has been investigated. There are various anti-dizziness medications available to alleviate this problem.

There are a variety of causes of dizziness, which you will find out about in the booklet you requested on the subject. And, until the specific cause of yours is definitely established, there is not much to be suggested in the way of specific relief. In some cases, the problem disappears spontaneously. But if a vascular defect is involved, it will not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I'd like to know if badly decayed teeth can cause a general tiredness, a feeling of being under par? Mrs. D.A.

They most certainly can. Diseased teeth and gums can provide a convenient doorway for germs to enter the body. Toothaches and sore gums can affect the prime purpose of these structures — grinding food for the early stages of digestion.

Their failure to perform such functions can lead to chronic reaction-type disorders in the stomach and intestinal tract.

If these possible effects I've mentioned fit your case, then you would be wise to get the repair job done as soon as possible. The expense may be high, but having proper teeth or dentures can save you more expensive problems later on. I suggest you get the work done.

In spite of all of the educational programs in this area, a recent National Health Survey revealed that about 50 per cent of children under 15 had never seen a dentist. For the age group under five the figure was about 90 per cent.

New food policy urged for America

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A widely known economist says the United States and Canada should build a joint new food and agriculture policy to meet the challenge of whether North American farmers should depend "largely" on free market prices or should be given the extra assurance of support floors set above current, comparatively low levels.

Brown's new paper, the economist pointed out in an interview, includes one significant analysis which had not appeared in his earlier discussions of proposed Canadian-American food policy action. He said a new analysis of Agriculture Department data shows a "disturbing" trend in per acre grain yields around the world since 1972, following a steady increase since 1960.

And the first requirement for the new food policy, economist Lester R. Brown said in a paper published by his Worldwatch Institute, should be a system for assuring farmers enough profit to encourage all-out production.

"If farmers are to expand production and make the needed investment decisions, they must be assured a fair return and a relatively stable world food economy," Brown said.

The paper was released Thursday by the institute, which is a private study organization created to research emerging world problems with funding from foundations, the UN and government agencies.

Brown's proposal for a joint U.S.-Canadian food policy commission had been floated earlier in an exploratory speech in Canada. Now he is advocating a policy proposing among other things that the two countries can help solve world food problems by taking a tough stand on access to their food supplies.

Only those countries which agree to "responsible" efforts to expand their own food production and control population growth should get guaranteed access to the American-Canadian granary, the economist argues.

Brown said one of the factors holding back food production in some countries, and deepening the world's dependence on North American supplies, is a political give-in to short-run consumer pressure.

"In all too many countries, food price policies are designed to pacify the more vocal urban constituencies," Brown writes. He said catering to these pressures may ease political pressures temporarily, but it discourages expanded farm production and leads to continued inflation of world food prices in the long run.

"Agricultural management, wherever it occurs, has become a luxury the world can ill afford," Brown said.

The economist's arguments echo the frequent warning by

He said plating a sliding three-year average of grain yields shows a 4 percent drop since 1972 due to a variety of factors ranging from weather to energy and fertilizer shortages and continued population "growth" in some areas. Brown said that since many of the factors involved are continuing, "the critical question now is: when will the upward trend resume and how vigorous will it be?"

Seasonal sign

Lower prices cause shortage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Urban consumers in many parts of the world are setting the stage for future food shortages by using their political power to keep food prices down, an economist said Thursday.

Lester R. Brown, head of the Worldwatch Institute in Washington, said in a paper released Thursday that the world is becoming "overwhelmingly dependent" on North America for its food supplies, partly because production has failed to keep pace with rising population in many other parts of the world.

"In all too many countries, food price policies are designed to pacify the more vocal urban constituencies, emphasizing ceiling prices rather than the floor prices needed to get agriculture moving," Brown said.

"Catering to the short-term interests of urban groups may temporarily contain political pressure, but it places further stress on North American food supplies in the long run and only serves to inflate food prices the world over."

Brown and the United States and Canada now have a virtual monopoly of the world's grain export supplies.

He said that with world resources of land, energy and agricultural production factors now lighter than in the past, "it will be more difficult to increase food production than it was in the past."

The economist, a former Agriculture Department official, said he had spotted a "most disturbing" downward trend in wheat yields of grain worldwide in recent years. He said government data now show that productivity increased steadily from 1960 through 1972 but has declined 4 percent since then.

Brown said it was impossible to tell which factors, including weather, energy and fertilizer supply, are mainly responsible for the new trend, but he warned that since many of the conditions are continuing, "the critical question now is, when will the upturn begin and how vigorous will it be."

City honors retiring 'Sam' HershbergerTown square scene of accidents

By SHANE O'NEILL

Times-News writer

RUPERT — Rupert's town square area has been the scene of 114 accidents in the last two years, according to a CH2M report.

Robert Jacobs, a member of the Boise firm hired to make a traffic safety study for the city, says of the 114 accidents, 96 occurred because of diagonal parking and 88 per cent on the outside line of the square.

He says only one off-street parking lot exists now and it is used to only 50-60 per cent of capacity, while 16 per cent of the parking space use on the square is all day long.

The firm proposed elimination of diagonal parking as a safety measure, but Ernest Bramsvoil of CH2M says this should be banished against the price businesses might have to pay from loss of traffic. He urges the city to consider what would make a viable downtown area.

Don Redfield, manager of King's, says each parking space is worth $60 a day to his business and has urged that off-street parking be considered to aid the downtown area.

The consulting firm advises states at the ends of Fremont Avenue, with right turns to take traffic around the square, left turn lanes to divert traffic onto Fremont be installed.

The engineers designate major arterials as State Highways 21 and 25, with minor arterials set as First, Eighth, A, C and H streets. Collectors would be First, Third, F, G and K streets, with 15th a possible addition when it is made a through street.

The five canal crossings in the city are adequate, according to the study, but reflectors are needed and guard rails might avoid a fatality from a car sliding off the road into the canal.

Jacobs says the intersection of A and First streets has poor visual approach, the only solution would be to move back the canal headwalls and embankments.

Elimination of diagonal parking at E- and Eighth streets is recommended, along with standard widening of Eighth. A signal crossing is proposed between the two elementary schools between C and D streets.

Although no accidents were recorded in the past two years there, Jacobs says the potential exists there and 65-70 per cent of the drivers speed on Eighth Street.

He also proposes H Street be widened with curb and gutter and that no parking be allowed for 50-60 feet from its intersection with Eighth Street to eliminate congestion of morning traffic.

The study was initiated by the Rupert traffic safety committee and a grant was received through the state.

CH2M took traffic counts and determined corridors of traffic, motorist speeds, accident locations and other statistics. It developed recommendations for traffic enforcement, including pedestrian and bicycle rules.

and devised a system for a local identification of accident problems for an engineering analysis program.

An inventory of signs and other stationary traffic items was made. From these developed recommendations for traffic control devices and elimination of visual aids.

The study, still in preliminary stages, found that the number of railroad crossings for access to flumes are adequate, as are the number and location of canal crossings for motorists.

It noted that the central square has more than adequate parking under the present diagonal system, but that the downtown accidents result primarily from parking problems, such as backing from the diagonal parking.

The streets were found capable of handling the traffic volumes for the city at this stage.

TWIN FALLS — City employees Thursday honored retiring water department Supt. John S. "Sam" Hershberger.

Hershberger, who turned 65 in October, has been a city employee for about 27 years. His first city job was to drive a sprinkler truck. Since then he has worked in the streets department, the sanitation department and the water department before becoming water department supervisor.

"I used to be a fisherman... I've got to get back in the government again."

City Manager Jean Miller praised Hershberger as one of the stronger, more outstanding department heads.

"Asked what he plans to do upon retirement, Hershberger said, "Like I tell everybody, I'm just going to do what I want to do," he added.

"I was in the market for a nice apartment that was close to my work and that was located near to a major shopping center. It sure didn't seem like a big order at first, but after weeks of unsuccessful hunting, I decided there must be an easier way . . . and there was! I turned to the Times-News Classified Ads and scanned the listings for apartments. Bingo! I immediately picked up the phone and called The Laurel Park Apartments. They advertised a nice 2 bedroom apartment that had all the features I was looking for; close to work, near to major shopping centers, quiet and extremely well-kept, lovely garden apartments and even a swimming pool. I'm very satisfied."

Two write-in candidates offer competition in DecloFour in SCD race

RUPERT — Only four candidates filed positions for the four supervisor's seats up for election Nov. 4 in the Minidoka Soil and Water Conservation District.

The deadline for filing was Tuesday. The election will be held at the district office in Rupert from 4-8 p.m. Tuesday.

Three incumbents and an assistant supervisor filed nominating petitions.

The incumbents are Howard Icenible, Blaine Hodges and Theodore Fujiki; Herman Hergenreider, assistant supervisor, filed the other petition.

The fourth supervisor whose seat is up for election is Bernard Scott. He has announced he will not run for reelection.

Residents of unincorporated land in Minidoka County are eligible to vote in the election Tuesday.

DECLO — Two write-in candidates offer the competition in the Declo election campaign.

One pair of councilmen against each other for the mayor post, being vacated by Terry Schrunk: Jones Leonard filed for the position. Arvil Voyer is running a write-in campaign.

The write-in bid of L. Gene Fries is another, a father-son battle in the race for two council seats, also sought by Ollis Fries and Jerry Bailey.

Leonard has served two terms on the city council. He operates a service station and also owns a coin-operated laundry.

Leonard is president of the Declo Kiwanis Club and chairman of the Burley Highway District board of directors, as well as past-president of the Declo Lions.

Noting that the city has grown and will keep growing, Leonard said short funds because of small population is the major problem.

"I've been a councilman long enough to know there's only so much we can do on growth," he said, "but a reasonable amount of things can be done."

He cited the new sewage system developed while he has been on the council and said he would try to make further improvements as the city had.

Because of his retirement, Fries said, he can devote time to serve in city government.

Gene Fries is sanitation engineer for the Declo LDS Stake Center.

Like his father, Gene said he has a duty to offer to serve the city and its people. A native of Declo, he said, he wants the people to develop pride in the Kiwanis Club.

Voyer is calling for greater harmony within city government. He also wants the city to improve its bookkeeping system.

Ollis Fries is retired. He served a two-year term on the Bailey farms and owns the Bailey Trailer Unit. He was born in nearby Albion and has lived in Declo 16 years.

Bailey believes installation systems will boost Declo's growth and said he wants to give his support toward that growth as city funds are available for further development.

Water 'only' issue

HOLLISTER — Water is not only the primary, but the only problem facing candidates for the Hollister City Council in Tuesday's election.

Two incumbents are opposed by two newcomers in the race for the two posts to be filled. The water system, supplied by two wells, is the only municipal service provided in Hollister, one of the smallest incorporated cities in the area.

All candidates agree water is the main issue, but the incumbents, Don Whaley and Andrew Carter, say the situation is under control while Joe Conner believes the water source should be enlarged.

Monte Hess, the fourth candidate, was unavailable for comment.

Conner, 38, operates a store and gas station here and has lived in Hollister about three years.

He says, "If we're going to grow we're going to need more water." He says if 15 or 20 more families move to the community the water source will need to be enlarged and work is needed on the pipe lines.

The candidate would like to see a park built on land set aside for that purpose near the pump house.

Mrs. Carter, who has lived here about 10 years, is seeking re-election for a third term. She operates a gift shop store in Hollister.

She says, "We have enough water if people would be reasonable in their usage." She says too many people let the water run from their hoses down the burro pit and out into fields.

She says a pump is being installed on the second well as an emergency source and that improvements around the city pumping plant are planned.

Whaley, a brick-layer, has been on the City Council for 10 years and has lived here the past 14 years, coming from the Boise area.

He says the reason he moved to Hollister was "because I like small towns," but that "you can't stop growth." He feels development in Hollister is not going to "get out of hand." The council is having a second pump installed at the city wells, he says.

Old Benjamin Franklin did not invent the waterbed actually, but he may have been among the first on record to sleep on same. At age 79 in 1785, he stopped off at an inn in Southampton, England. His diary reads: "I went at noon to bathe in Martin's saltwater hotbath, and floating on my back, fell asleep, and slept near an hour by my watch, without sinking or turning over. I never did before, and should hardly have thought it possible. Water is the easiest bed that can be."

Can't say how long the Orientals have been kicking one another, but they have not always had a corner on that martial art in England during the 1500s, kicking contests among country boys were far more common than fist fights. Procedure was for two lads to stand face to face, hold on to each other's shoulders, and boot it out. The winner limped away. The loser didn't. Bones broke, badly. The treé-limb crutch was widely to be seen there and then.

UNDER THE FIRST formal rules of the original baseball games in 1845, the pitcher threw underhand and the game didn't end until one team made 21 runs. When a hit ball was caught on the first bounce off the playing field, the batter was out. And when the ball-so-bounced, the batter was out. But when the ball-so-bounced, wasn't caught, the batter only took one base, no more.

ALFRED BERNHARD NOBEL invented dynamite, you know that. Client asks, what prompted him to do so? An explosion in his nitroglycerine factory killed his brother and crippled his father. That did it. Alfred committed himself to concoct some less dangerous explosive.

Acequia race 'mild'

ACEQUIA - Issues are not a strong item in the Acequia council campaign, where three challengers face two incumbents.

Mayor Verne Comstock, who chaired the village board and has held the mayor post since Acequia became a city, is unopposed in his bid for re-election.

Curtis Bair and Gerald Harman are seeking to retain their council seats.

Fred Barton, Glen Stephenson and Larry Wall are also bidding for the council seats.

Harman is seeking his third term on the council. He is a custodian at Acequia Elementary School.

Harman said he will work toward a water supply for watering lawns in the city.

Bair, appointed to the council last spring, calls for improvement of the city park, including grassing.

He also wants more streets oiled and street signs erected.

Stephenson was born and raised in Acequia. His farms for Morgan and Wellington, Stephenson also is interested in oiling of streets and dredging of the city park.

The former "acequia" farmer who came to Acequia in 1958, he still does some farm work.

He has adopted a neutral and we attitude toward specific city programs of improvement.

Wall is a Rupert native and has a repair shop in Acequia, where he is a contractor.

Acknowledging money limitations of the city, Wall said he also would like to see street signs, adding the city has many needs.

Male witch 'practices' at Pocatello

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — For Byrle Moore of Idaho Falls, witchcraft is more than an October spoof.

The 34-year-old self-proclaimed male witch has spent five years studying and practicing the art of witchcraft and is pursuing his studies at Idaho State University.

Moore said he does not belong to any cult or organization of witches.

"As far as I know, I'm the only declared witch in the area."

"Most people's preconceived notions about witchcraft are illegitimate," Moore said. "Witches are not worshippers of the devil; a true witch does not practice black magic because any evil you do will be cast back on you tenfold."

"I have been led towards witchcraft all my life, before I even knew what it was called," he said.

"In '69 I came across the Old Religion. After studying it for two years I decided I was going to become a practitioner or male witch."

Moore denied being a warlock, saying "warlocks are servants of a witch."

He said misconceptions of witchcraft stem from early times when witches were forced to go underground to escape persecution. He estimated that at one time six million persons were accused and executed as witches when less than one per cent actually practiced the craft.

Moore said: "The United States is driven to develop warships and people naturally associate them with witches."

Moore said: "Witchcraft, 'Wicca,' or 'Old Religion' recognizes a god but in the sense of several gods. Wicca is the worship of nature or nature's gods. It feels part of the modern study of the Old Religion is to call upon deigns for their knowledge."

"During my studies I have contacted (called up) spiritual demons including Behemoth, a demon of knowledge," he said.

"My idea of witchcraft is the quest for knowledge," he said. "The pure knowledge that I am trying to gain is to get inside myself, realize who and what I am and what Neuram from T-

"To be a witch is to be able to use your imagination to daydream and desire to control your own mind."

He said his present day witch practices are an addition rather than moderation of the Old Religion. Superstitions, occult sciences and palm reading all stem from the Old Religion.

"Everybody carries some evidence of witchcraft. If you have good luck at doing something, you do it the same way, over and over again. What you're doing actually is preaching witchcraft."

"The man thing I adhere to and practice is the power of my own mind."

"Less than one per cent of all cattle mutilations throughout the Western United States are done by any kind of cult," he said.

"I have yet to see, in any of my studying, any ritual which involves the mutilation of animals."

Load limit in effect

BONNIE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Transportation announced today a seven-ton load limit will be in effect next week on the State Highway 52 bridge over the Payette river near New Plymouth, while the structure undergoes repairs.

Department officials said repairs would begin Monday and should be completed by the following Friday.

Officials said repairs were necessary because of a deteriorated wood pier cap which must be replaced. They said traffic was being detoured over a county bridge one mile east.

The department has a new concrete bridge under construction which will be built at the present site,

4 men campaign for Ketchum post

KETCHUM — Four men, including a former mayor and a candidate in the last election, are running for mayor of Ketchum.

The position became open this year with the resignation of Bill Brand.

Ted Werry, a former mayor, believes his past experience and long residence in Ketchum gives him an insight into the problems facing the city.

"The favor of control of growth is ours. I think the amount of land available will control the growth."

He feels Ketchum has probably reached its growth peak.

He views the problem of citizens into Big Wood River, as no solution to the problem but said he supported city administrator Chuck Cirwin's attempt to gain federal funding for a tertiary treatment stage in the present plant.

Werry believes a head tax for Ketchum would help the financial position of the city. Tourists will not look at a hill too much, he says. He would like to see the state legislature pass a head tax bill.

Dave Devendorf, president of Edelweiss Corp., wants to see Ketchum run like a business.

Devendorf has definite ideas how the city can raise money needed for improvements. He favors a ski lift tax with the monies going to the city. In addition he would like to see the River Run parking area at the base of Bald Mountain's east side annexed into the city.

The city could operate the parking lot and realize a good profit, he feels. "Ketchum caters to Sun Valley without getting paid for it," Devendorf says.

He also likes the idea of a franchise tax for the Sun Valley buses for using Ketchum's streets. He has studied the franchise fees of the various utility companies in town as well as the garbage collection service and feels the franchise fees should be raised in all services if possible.

Gerald Seiffert

Seiffert, owner of the J-Norman Gallery, Elkhorn, says if he is elected Ketchum will have a comprehensive plan adopted soon afterwards.

However, Seiffert says the 1975 state planning act allows amendments to the plan every six months. He advocates adopting parts of the Ketchum community plan as an addendum to transitions, the latest city plan, and work on the two after adoption.

Speaking of the recent encroachment by Idaho Power in the city of Ketchum with power poles above the ordinance limits, Seiffert said "once we have a comprehensive plan passed, Idaho Power will know what they can do."

"No way can Idaho Power install 40 foot poles if we had a plan," Seiffert says.

He said a completed and approved plan would make the granting of federal monies easier as well. Seiffert said there would be no secret meetings under his reign.

Jake Davidson

Jake (John Dale) Davidson, owner of Boeninger Brothers Hopshop, who ran in the last mayoral election, thinks Ketchum could ease out of its financial crutches Sun Valley Co. we'll taxed for using the city streets.

However, Davidson believes Ketchum must at the same time dissolve the petty jealousy of a rich man's good fortune and work with Sun Valley.

The single biggest expense to Ketchum is the repair of city streets, he says. Sun Valley can bring in the ore and timber interests that use the streets, should be assessed for that use, he said.

WE HAVEN'T GOT EVERYTHING, BUT WE HAVE EVERYTHING ELSE.

Fred Craig: A Twin Falls violinmaker — p. 8

Valley comment

QUESTION: Would you rather see Ford or Reagan be the Republican candidate for president next year?

Cindy Hill, Twin Falls:
I Ford. I don't like Reagan. He's just a strange man.

Tom Hutchison, Twin Falls:

Reagan: I've seen
Reagan work when I was a resident of California... I think he does very interesting housecleaning... and I'm a little bit tired of Ford's policies... Ford seems to be catering mostly to big business—oil companies and the like — and ignoring... smaller businesses like agriculture.
I think this is bad for the American economy.

Robert Rude, Norwich, Conn.:
I'd rather see Jackson.
But between Ford and Reagan, I guess Ford. I don't think Reagan did a good job as governor of California.

Craig Hobday, Gooding:
Ford. He's not nearly as hamboyant as Reagan is.
Besides that, he's doing a pretty good job as it is.

Royce Hogue, Twin Falls:
Reagan. I'm originally from California and he was a damn good governor. I liked his cutback in state expenditures without hurting the state. I'm pretty sure he would do the same thing in the federal government. I'm not saying Ford. Under his administration we're too involved in foreign countries — more than we're involved here.

Tom Qualic, Twin Falls:
I'd rather have Reagan, definitely. I don't think Ford's smart enough.
Ford's not very popular as far as being president. I think he's very poor on judging the economy.

Carolyn Jasso, Twin Falls:
Reagan. I haven't liked what Ford has been doing lately. Groceries are too expensive. There are a bunch of programs like food stamps, but they are going to the wrong people. I think we just need a new type of government — new people, new ideas.

Mabel Loughmiller, Twin Falls:
I'd like to see a Ford-Reagan ticket. But I think I probably prefer Reagan. I like some of the things he did when he was governor of California. He tried to clean up the welfare and so forth.

Works of art

Fred Craig is one of those "foolish fiddlemakers." Fred says you have to be a little crazy to make violins. But Craig's violins are handcrafted works of art and his story—complete-from-the-choosing-of-good-wood-for-a-fiddle-to-the-moment-when-he-lovingly-plays-the-first-note-on-a-new-instrument appears on page 8.

Raff flipped nickel

The famous coin George Raft flipped—constantly—in the movie "Scarface" was a nickel. According to Robin Adams Sloan in the Gossip Column on page 15 of the Idaho Magazine, Raff was told by Al Capone, "My boys would have been flipping $20 gold pieces."

Royko-image deflated

Columnist Mike Royko always prided himself on being the neighborhood bad boy—but a self-analysis test punctures that balloon. The test score put him in the same category as Goody-goodies Jack Armstrong and Andy Hardy. See p. 6 of the Idaho Magazine.

A real ho-hummer

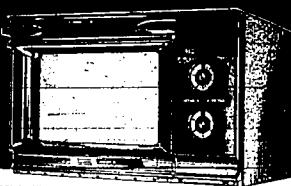

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI) — Radio Station WALG planned a four-hour discussion of public safety Monday on its daily morning telephone talk show.

But a station spokesman said only two calls were received during the entire program.

"On other topics, we have been averaging 30-30 calls aired and probably lots of attempts," said the spokesman.

Old knife may have been Bowie's

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Bart Moore can't prove the knife handed down through his family is the original Bowie knife, but he doubts anyone can prove it's not.

Experts tell him there is a "good" possibility that his knife is the real one. "I own the knife, that's all I can tell you," said Moore, an employee of the University of Alabama. "I don't actually claim to have the original knife, because nobody can guarantee it's the first one."

"What I do know is only what a number of experts have told me as I have looked into the history of the knife," he said. "Many of them say chances are good that my knife is the first one."

But Charles Long, curator of the Alamo Museum in San Antonio, Tex., said Thursday Moore is wrong about having the original knife carried and lost by the legendary Jim Bowie at the battle of the Alamo.

Long's comment came after the University of Alabama distributed a news release telling the story of Moore's knife, given his grandfather by an old Mexican man in 1890 to settle a $5 debt.

According to the release, which Moore confirmed in a telephone interview, the Mexican said he fought with Santa Ana at the Battle of the Alamo in 1836 and picked up the knife near the spot the bodies of the Alamo heroes, including Bowie, were burned.

Moore said he showed Long the knife, kept in a bank vault, since it was valued at about $55,000, and Long told him it was probably made by James Black, a well-known knifemaker and silversmith.

"I don't know if mine was made by Black, but that's what the experts tell me," Moore said. "They claim Black went blind about five years after the Alamo and didn't make very many knives."

"But mine bears an acorn and the initials 'J.B.' like the sign a silversmith or craftsman would use, and apparently no other knives with that symbol have been found."

"My knife fulfills all the legends about the Bowie knife and the experts I have talked to say it is incredibly unique, built by a skilled maker. I am not an expert, I don't want anyone to verify it as an original and I sure didn't mean to put Mr. Long on the spot with the legend."

"I don't want to display it or sell it because my son wants to keep it in the family," Moore said, "and that's that's as far as I am concerned."

Royko takes nostalgia trip

© Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — I've always been hooked by the self-analysis tests that frequently appear in the feature pages of newspapers and magazines.

The questions have multiple-choice answers, and each answer has a different value in points. You add up the points and determine the kind of shape you're in.

For instance, the question in a test on drinking might go: "Do you usually drink...?"

(a) Once a week? (1 point)
(b) Only after work? (2 points)
(c) A pint before breakfast? (3 points)

Or, if it's about your mental state, a question might go:

"Do you spend a lot of time...?"

(a) Worrying about bills? (1 point)
(b) Thinking you're getting old too fast? (2 points)
(c) Sitting in a dark closet by yourself, whimpering and wringing your hands? (3 points)

The various tests tell you if you are likely to have a heart attack, if you have a drab personality, if you are on the verge of a marital breakup, and just anything else that might be of interest.

The idea is that a bad score should warn you to change some of your habits.

I've taken them all. And, on the basis of the results, I have discovered I died sometime in 1968, that I'm confined to a padded cell, that everybody I know hates me, or should; and that I'm very happy.

But I haven't changed any of my habits. Why push my luck?

Not long ago, a new test appeared in a column by Ann Landers. It consisted of questions about boozing and drugs and sex, and getting drunk and arrested, and getting young girls in trouble and all sorts of fascinating stuff.

The trouble was it was designed for teenagers, to determine whether they were gooey-goodies (0 to 21 points), normal (22 to 35 points), or depraved and dissipated (36 points and up).

Although I am no longer a teen-ager, at least most of the time, I decided to take the test anyway.

My answers were based on the things I had done through my 19th year. Since drugs weren't widely used then, I substituted liquor in questions that dealt with them.

Answering the questions was a real nostalgia trip.

Several times, I had to sit back and chuckle at memories of what it was like when I was fondly known in my neighborhood as "the Wolfman," "that creep," and "stay away from my sister, you!"

Then I added up the total points. And I couldn't believe the results: I had scored 19. Nineteen! Even Jack Armstrong or Andy Hardy would have had higher scores than that.

I figured something was wrong with the test, so I asked a friend of mine, who is about my age, to take it. He is a rather straight sort, who came from a decent neighborhood, and spent much of his youth reading books, playing Ping-Pong, and working on a Junior Achievement project.

He got 35 points, putting him on the edge of desperation.

He smiled and said: "Someday, I'll tell you about the girl next door."

So I asked a woman in her 30s to take the test. She is a proper sort who attended parochial schools and I've never known her to swear, spit or kick children. And she got 32 points.

"You want to tell me about the boy next door?" I asked. She just wrinkled.

It made no sense and left me feeling depressed. Me a good-goo? It was impossible. In every neighborhood, there is a youth who is so dangerous an influence that all the parents tell their kids that they can't associate with him.

Well, I was so dangerous an influence that my own brother wasn't permitted to associate with me. Respectable girls blushed in my presence. In a survey taken by adult reproducers in the neighborhood I was voted Rookie of the Year.

I've had that test in my wallet for days now. Every so often, I take it out, take the test again, and the results are always the same.

So I have to face it, and be honest, with myself. I just wasn't the young man I thought I was. Just as that youthful home run wasn't as long as we remember, that touch-down run is spectacular, that winning basket from as far out — my evil acts weren't as loathsome as I pride myself upon.

I've since taken the test one more time. And my answers were based on what I would have done if I had been given any co-operation. Boy, oh boy, oh boy!

My score was 92. Even Mr. Hyde couldn't have done any better," a London fog.

I feel good again. Maybe I didn't do anything terrible. But at least my intentions were bad.

Electric mattress threat to marriage

By ERMA BOMBECK

Sometimes I think there is an underground movement at work in this country to destroy the institution of marriage.

First, it was the joint checking account that started a disintegration of war for millions of couples. Then, the dual control electric blanket which was responsible for dissolving another million or so marriages." This was followed by the unleashing of Tom Jones whose swelling hips tore couples apart who previously thought they could never watch the Dennis Guilder.

Now it seems marriage is to be dealt another challenge ... the electric mattress.

The electric mattress reportedly will provide separate heat controls for heat without all those heavy blankets and quilts to wrestle. When the husband wants to sleep with only a sheet over you?

"Last night," As usual, you hogged all the covers," I hollered what? he said evenly. "I don't believe this is going to get a drink of water and when I came back you looked like a tent that had just been staked to the ground. I spent the entire night perched on the bedrail."

"Don't complain. If I hadn't had a nip of antifreeze before bedtime, my pipes would have frozen."

"Well, I happen to think an electric mattress might be the answer to our sleeping problems," he insisted.

"You might be right," I said, "but who would have custody of the controls?"

"I consider myself a reasonable-human-being who can assess what temperature is proper to maintain comfort without excess."

"Don't give me that," I said. "You are the cheapo who tapped up the electrical network because you said we were losing heat."

"Huh-huh," he snapped.

"Do you know how many women are the coldest foot in the world?"

Poll reveals teeners favor small families

By The Editors of Scholastic Magazines Inc.

When it comes to the size of families, an increasing number of American teenagers are thinking small, according to a recent Scholastic Magazines poll.

A 56 per cent majority of the 40,000 junior and senior high students surveyed believes the American family should have two or fewer children. Three years ago when Scholastic asked the same question, 56 per cent still favored three or more children.

And one-fourth of the students through a family should have at least four children.

But presently, most of the young people questioned feel that the world is already crowded and that it would be wrong to add more than two children per family to the world population. —

With overpopulation — and all, I'd probably have one or two children, then maybe adopt some more," says 16-year-old Brian Warren of Wisconsin. "I just wouldn't feel having a lot of kids."

This attitude among today's teen-agers could have an important effect on the nation's future birthrate. As it is, U.S. families have been having fewer and fewer children in recent years. Since 1971, birthrate has dropped from 17.3 per thousand to an estimated 14.8 per thousand according to the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

In the poll, Scholastic asked:

"In your view, how many children should there be in today's American family?"

Meal moths' real trouble in home

By GEORGE ABRAHAM.

INDIAN MEAL MOTH:

If you want something to drive you crazy, get an infestation of flour and meal moths in your home.

Before we describe them, cast out any notion these are connected with house plants. They aren't. The Indian meal moth is one of the most common moths infesting flour and meal. There are others including the Mediterranean flour moth and the meal moth.

The Indian meal moth has a wing span of about 1 1/2 inches. The caterpillar or larva is about 1/2 inch long, is dirty white, and the pupa or resting stage is in a silken cocoon spun by the larva.

The female moth lays up to 300 eggs, laid singly or in groups on the food materials. Soon after the tiny caterpillar come out, feeding for a few weeks and then they are mature when they spin the silken cocoon in which they rest or pupate.

The adult moth emerges from this cocoon.

The damage—it's the "worms" or larval stage which causes the injury. The worms feed on grains, dried fruits, nuts and even dried dog and fish foods.

As the larva feeds, it spins a web, leaving behind a silky thread wherever it crawls. You often see particles of food sticking to the thread.

Poor manners, always hungry

By LINDA B. MERRY.

D.V.M.

Question: I have a medium-sized collie 4 years old. He seems like he's always hungry.

As a matter of fact, he eats anything. I tried feeding him in the morning but it doesn't help. When he eats he slurps like a vacuum cleaner instead of chewing. If I give him a piece of meat, he just swallows it.

more than a frail seven-inch doggie. Why don't you get an opinion from her veterinarian the next time he sees her? Then you can adjust the calories to match her size.

Question: In your recent columns I read that white cats are deaf. Does that include Siamese kittens?

Answer: All pure-bred Siamese kittens are white at birth. Their "color points" or dark markings

Merry Pet

I'm desperate because I can't find anything that helps. He acts like he hasn't eaten in a year. Have you any suggestions?

Answer: Yes, get him a physical test that includes a pancreatic enzyme test, thyroid and a fecal exam for parasites. If the results are normal, cut his meat in small chunks, give it to him and don't watch.

Dogs don't really need to chew their food since their saliva does very little toward digestion. Unlike people, almost all the dog's digestive process occurs in the stomach and parts posterior. His manners may be atrocious but at least he doesn't display them long at a time!

Question: I have a 2-year-old toy female poodle who seems hungry all the time. She weighs nine pounds. What would be her best weight, especially to have puppies later?

Answer: All lady poodles are supposed to have a svelte French figure. However, since a toy poodle is only height under ten inches at the shoulder, there is no exact "best" weight for anyone.

Obviously, a heavy-boned, ten-inch-tall dog will weigh don't appear for several weeks. They definitely aren't white, blue-eyed cats by the time they're weaned and deafness isn't prevalent among them.

Not all pure white, blue-eyed cats are deaf either. Deafness seems to be a recessive trait linked with the trait of having blue eyes. White is a dominant color for cats—exactly opposite to most other animals.

When a white cat marries, her kittens will be while regardless of Papa's color. They will carry genes for other colors, however. When they start families of their own, they may produce kittens with prevalent white spots around blue eyes.

Deafness is common in these animals, especially when "white spotting" continues around the ears. All of which explains why cats that have one blue and one green eye are often deaf. This type of deafness is due to physical abnormalities in the ear's inner structure.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to The Merry Pet Column in care of the Times-News.

You often see moths flying around in the home in the evening. They are attracted to lights and they often appear in front of a TV set.

Control: The Department of entomology at Cornell University recommends the following for control: Discard all infested packages. There's no way to separate the insects from the flour, meal, etc. Transfer uninfested food to glass jars with tight fitting tops.

Remove all food-containers and utensils from the infested area and clean up thoroughly. First, use a vacuum cleaner and then wash with soap and water. Get into every crack and corner where bits of flour etc., may have accumulated.

SAVE WOOD ASHES: More people will use their fireplaces this year than ever before. Don't forget to save your fireplace ashes. They're worth money to gardeners!

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

F. R. of Twin Falls: "We want to feed our trees this fall and wonder if it's alright to spread fertilizer on the ground, or should the food be put into holes drilled in the ground?"

People are divided as to which method is best. Testival State University in cooperation with a commercial tree company shows there's only a slight increase in growth both by broadcasting fertilizer on the soil surface made almost as much growth as fed by drilling holes and adding plant food.

For all practical purposes you can feed your trees by spreading fertilizer over the soil surface, going out as far as the edge of limbs. Commercial fruit growers lead their trees by broadcasting fertilizer underneath them.

If you use a liquid plant food, it's a good idea to punch holes in the soil and fill with solution. For years our method of feeding ornamental and fruit trees consisted of punching holes in the soil, using a rowbar. Fall is an ideal time to feed trees, shrubs and evergreens. Trees, shrubs fed now will take advantage of fall rains and winter snow.

C. E. of Malta: "We have built ourselves a small greenhouse and want to grow vegetables in it. My husband says that the produce will be flat and tasteless. Is that true?"

No. You can raise just as tasty vegetables under glass as you can outdoors. In fact, we've been growing fruits and vegetables, as well as ornamentals, for the past 25 years in our own greenhouse.

One reason why we wrote our latest book, Growing Fruits, Vegetables and Ornamentals Under Glass, was to prove that it's possible to grow edible as well as ornamentals in a greenhouse.

You can grow cucumbers, lettuce, tomatoes, peppers, peas, beans, grapes, lemons, oranges, rhubarb, blueberries and just about every other plant that you grow outdoors.

Plants can be grown in containers in your greenhouse, or you can grow them directly in the bench. We feel that growing plants under glass is great therapy and we're happy to see so many home owners now building greenhouses next to their homes. It's a wonderful investment.

Tower still leaning

ROME (UPI) — The Leaning Tower of Pisa is still leaning but more and more slowly, the scientist in charge of its preservation says.

Gianni Travaglini, chairman of the Commission for Preserving the Tower of Pisa, told the Italian news agency Anad the famous white marble tower leaned only 5 1/4 inches in an inch in the first 10 months of this year, less than of 1974 and two and a half times the 1973 figure.

The tower, begun in 1174 and completed in 1350, now leans more than 14 feet off perpendicular.

An Idaho magazine interview

Fred Craig: A craftsman who makes violins, for the fun and music

By KRIS COLEMAN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "All fiddle makers are foolish," Fred Craig says, demonstrating one of his inventions, for bow-stringing which makes use of a mouse trap.

"After 20 years making fiddles and some 70 years repairing them, Craig is in a position to know."

"When I was 12 I got a fiddle." He says, "Timbers were rough and if you didn't fix it yourself, you just didn't have a fiddle."

Though fiddle-makers are part of a rare craft in this day and age, the art came naturally to Craig, one of a family of fiddle players, including his father and uncles, and a carpenter before taking up his "hobby."

After arthritis forced him to retire from carpentry in 1952 he began making fiddles. In the space of that 20 years he has made 14.

The difference between a fiddle and a violin, Craig explains, is the same as that between lucerne and alfalfa. "It all depends on who's talking."

After a brief apology for his playing which he says has not been good since he developed arthritis, Craig, accompanied by his wife, Hattie, on the piano, launches into a bluegrass stomper, "Stones Rag," to show what a fiddle should sound.

"I always say if fiddles don't have accompaniment they lack something." Hattie says with a big smile as the final notes of the vagrante in the air.

She, too, has tried her hand at fiddle-making, but gave it up after irreparably damaging 5 thumb-nail. "You only get thumbs once," she says replacing one of her two trophies to the shelf.

The Craigs regularly attend fiddle contests in British Columbia, Canada, and Mesa, Arizona. Last month they returned from Arizona with a second place award. Display shelves in the living room are packed to capacity with trophies collected over the years.

Fiddles are judged at the contest on the basis of tone and workmanship and awards are given either in the category of tone or "all points". The latter, is an award for the fiddle overall, tone and craftsmanship. Within these two categories distinction is made between fiddles with gut strings and those with steel strings.

"You get kind of crazy being a fiddle maker's wife," Mrs. Craig says. Recently, she was returning home from a shopping trip and spotted a stamp at a construction site. She rushed home, she says, and told her husband about the possible wood find.

The Craig's garage lined with a five foot high stack of trimmed down hunks attests to many successful wood hunts and though they do not have a fireplace, they say their neighbors are well stocked for the winter as a result of their throw-out pieces.

Idaho's dry climate is ideal for fiddle wood, Craig says, because trees grow "where there are no water problems" books for stump and standing dead trees, because sap runs up and down in trees as they dry out more thoroughly and quickly when standing.

Even so, finding good fiddle wood is not easy. After sawing into a tree, Craig says he often finds the grain is not good or the wood is full of worm holes.

"The Forest Service doesn't like you to go around chopping down trees and then leaving them there," Craig laughs, so he has to be careful in his selections.

He says he judges the wood first from the looks of it. Secondly, "It doesn't ring, it's punky". Finally, the wood should "rustle" when rubbed. The inexperienced eye and ear might be fooled, but fiddle wood hunt more than a little difficult and mysterious.

Spartan is his favorite wood, being says, "he always uses it for the fiddle neck after nating with sides and bottom of maple, sycamore and at least one fiddle of black walnut. Amongst fiddle makers in general, he says, myrtle, maple, sycamore and poplar are some of the most popular.

"Violins are like people," he explains, "they like to be where it's warm, about 72 degrees."

To keep his fiddles warm, Craig works in his indoor workshop surrounded by intricate paraphernalia and hand-crafted drawers of his own making, except during the summer when it is warm enough outdoors in the garage.

All year round the garage houses a massive spiro-graph-like machine with two huge arms, one of which moves around the shape of a particular fiddle form while the other arms cuts that exact shape into another piece of wood. The machine was made for him by his brother.

Pieces of unfinished wood resembling fiddle backs and fronts shot full of holes are used to mold the delicately thin wood of the fiddle into shape. After the wood has been shaped it is glued together so tightly the seam can barely be felt or seen. The fiddle neck is completely hand carved.

Though the method, when carefully explained, is almost indecipherable to the layman's ear, Craig says he learned it "just feeling my way along."

"I don't take patience," Craig says. "Sometimes I start to work on something in the morning and the next thing I know my wife's got dinner ready."

The most exciting moment for him, Craig says, is when he can finally string the fiddle and play. Sometimes, when he can't "troll" to get the fiddle varnished, he "plays in the white", the unvarnished fiddle.

"It usually sounds pretty bad for the first 30 minutes until it gets warmed up," he says. "A good violin may improve some after being played, especially if it's played good. If it just sits around and never gets vibrations it will get stiff."

The tone of a fiddle is the most crucial element, Craig says, and a good bow can make all the difference. For the most part, he does not make his own bows. One of several he uses was given to him by a "millionaire" friend and fellow fiddle maker.

"Fiddlers like to trade," he explains.

Craig does not usually sell his violins, but he estimates their value at about $300 each.

"It's just something he likes to do," Mrs. Craig says.

Though he jokingly refers to members of his craft as "foolish," Craig works on his fiddles every day.

He describes an old man who sits on the porch day after day staring into space.

"I'd rather be doing what I'm doing," he says.

Intricate
work

Whittling away on the tiny handle of a violin bow, Fred Craig says he doesn't need a lot of patience for his work because the craft is something he likes to do.

Hands of a craftsman

For more than 20 years Fred Craig has worked at his hobby of making violins. Only after he retired as a carpenter did Fred take up violinmaking.

The joy of playing

Once Fred Craig completes a violin, he tunes it up, and plays. Fred and his wife Hattie play music together almost every day.

The United Way is reaching out. It goes into every neighborhood. To every age group. Across every income level.

To help, in a thousand ways. A neighbor, a relative. Maybe someone down the street who's out of work. Or sick. Or in trouble. Chances are the United Way helps someone you know. Maybe someday it'll be helping you.

Thanks to you. It works.

FOR ALL OF US.

Second thoughts?

GEORGETTE (George Raft), and Ted Bessell (Ted Knight) decide to marry and rush into a commitment to prevent second thoughts, on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," Saturday on CBS.

GOSSIP COLUMN

...Publicity shy . . . or mad?

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: I don't understand why Jackie and Christina Onassis would give their okay to a movie about Ari's life. Don't they know it would be terribly sensational? — V.R., St. Louis, Mo.

A: You are quite right and it turns out that neither has given the okay. Christina says she will take legal steps to stop any such film, as she loathes and detests the idea and wants the world to know that producer Nico Mastorakis, who claims friendship with her late father, does not have her blessing. And she did not even acknowledge it when offered a role in the movie.

Q: With gas consumption now considered patriotic, are the Hollywood stars giving up their big cars? — U.T., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

A: To status-conscious movie types this poses a tough problem because horsepower and prestige have long been linked. Cary Grant, for one, has just got himself a new, blue Cadillac and apparently isn't worried about the gas mileage, though he hates the fact that the automaker's name is prominently displayed on the vehicle. It is, he says, as if you got a new suit from your tailor and he made you wear the label on the outside.

Q: I see where James Mason names the late

A: The British comedian and the former child star tied the knot because she is expecting their baby early in 1976. Does two years seem like "forever" to you?

. . . gas no problem

Q: We hear a lot about people getting rich from "Jaws." How about actor Robert Shaw? — L.D., Elkhart, Ind.

A: Shaw won't make as much as he would have if his plan had worked. To avoid U.S. taxes he tried to limit the number of days he spent in this country by flying on weekends to Canada or Bermuda during the shooting.

But there were so many filming delays he had to give up his scheme and now he must divvy up his spoils with Uncle Sam.

Q: Regarding Lilli Palmer's book "Change Lobsters and Dance," she says Rex Harrison's version of his life with the late Kay Kendall was "fantasy." Lilli claims she gave Rex a divorce so he could marry the dying Kay but he wrote her once a week while married to Kay and said he'd come back to her. Do you believe this? — G.T., New York City.

A: Ms. Palmer is a delightful lady and she did indeed give Rex his freedom to marry Kay. But we believe Rex's story that he was madly in love with Kay and never told her the facts of her illness. Close pals say it was Rex's finest hour. Rex claims today, "I never went back to Lilli and if she thinks I was in love with her when I was married to Kay, she's wrong."

Q: Why is it hardly ever read anything on the die-hard actress Maggie Smith? — P.P., Putney, Vt.

A: Maggie is practically psychopathic about being interviewed. She always hates what she reads about herself and every press story makes her more and more hostile toward interviewers. Reporters are now calling Robert DeNiro, who is also publicity shy, the male Maggie Smith.

MASON

Margaret a favorite

Margaret Rutherford as the best actress he's ever worked with — to avoid offending anyone. Do you know how he feels about his new leading lady? — C.C., Hollywood, Calif.

Q: Is it true that Judy Garland, Ann Miller, Lucille Ball, Sue Lyon, Candy Bergen, Shelley Winters, Faye Dunaway, Raquel Welch and Menna Moriuchi

Q: Why did Tuesday Weld and Dudley Moore finally get married? It seems like they've been going together forever. — G.T., Brentwood, Calif.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Where does the Secret Service go next in trying to protect the President? We carried you they are thumbing through needed and acting agency files looking for a suitable double for George Ford or someone to take the heat off, just as ~~the~~ reached hand with "DeGaulle" (Adrienne Corri, legend) and the British with General Montgomery (Clifton James). The presidential impersonator would get a good salary, a nice Washington apartment unit, of course, a chance to get shot at.

Q: Will Warren Beatty finally settle down and marry Michelle Phillips? — D.Q., Wheeling, W. Va.

A: Michelle, who used to sing with "The Mamas and the Papas," may just be determined enough to land the elusive Warren. She let him go alone to England for the opening of "Shampoo" and Warren began eyeing other girls again. So when he went to Rome recently, also for "Shampoo," Michelle went along to keep an eye on him, even though she had to cancel a long-scheduled recording session and pay off a bunch of musicians.

Q: With TV writers getting all that money why is most of the stuff we see on the tube so dumb? — F.R., Elizabeth, N.J.

A: Joseph Cawell who has written for many of the top comedy shows says he used to think TV types were stupid, too, until he started working with them. He now suggests that TV dramas are carefully crafted to keep you turned, not by feeding your intellect with high-brow content but by clever manipulation of dramatic action. And, he says, TV writers are supremely expert. If you don't believe him why you watching TV so much?

Q: Why hasn't France acted to ransom the French woman being held captive in Africa? I think this is a disgrace. — V.R., Burlington, Vt.

A: France's dilemma in the affair of Madame Françoise Claustra, held captive for 18 months by Chad tribesmen, is an unusual one. This archaeologist deliberately went into the Tibesti Desert in spite of warnings from French officials, fellow scientists and her own organization. So far, efforts to secure her release have caused the capture of her husband and the torture and death of one French military negotiator.

French-educated rebel leader Hissene Habré got the world notice he wanted and is still upping the price for release.

Q: In "Scarface," George Raft kept flipping a coin. Some of us say it was a quarter—others fifty cents. Who's right? — R.R., Des Moines, Iowa.

A: Neither. The famous coin was a nickel! Incidentally, when the actor finally met Al Capone, the racketeer sneered at the five-cent piece and told him: "My boys would have been flipping $20 gold pieces."

Q: What happened to that daughter who was born to the late Jayne Mansfield when the actress was only 15? — W.W., Provo, Ia.

A: The daughter, Jayne Marie, is now 25 and has just surfaced in Hollywood where she says she will follow in her mother's footsteps and take up a dramatic career. Jayne Marie has been photographed wearing some of her mother's old clothes and posing by the heart-shaped pool once owned by the flamboyant sex goddess who was killed in a car crash eight years ago.

Q: Who are the people backing David Frost's TV interview with Nixon? Are they English? — H.E., Kansas City, Kans.

A: The strongest rumor has it that the consortium includes Nixon's friends Bebe Rebozo and Robert Abrahams, as well as former U.S. Ambassador to England Walter Annenberg.

Q: Now that Tom Wolfe has ups: the art world, what's his next attack? — C.T., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A: He was going to debunk James Joyce's "Ulysses," but we hear Tom has backed off from this project. The journalist is finishing a book about the space program and has a novel in the works called "Vanity Fair," in which he'll try to do for contemporary New York what Thackeray did for 19th-century London. Tom says he'd also like to write a book on status and another on the revival of religion in the Seventies.

Q: What about Lans Turner and her daughter? Have either or both married and where do they live? — M.M., Charleston, S.C.

A: Neither is married. Lans lives in a Los Angeles apartment. Her mother and her daughter share a house in the San Fernando Valley.

Q: Which make of automobile holds the record for total number of sales? — K.V., Sacramento, Calif.

A: This is a difficult question because, with the most stable and yearly changes, Detroit models often hold the lead. Life spans of Volkswagen Beetles seems to be the champion seller for a single model although it passed the old Ford Model T only in 1972. If model changes are considered, the Chevrolet is probably the record holder.
